Military Observers Declare Tide Is Believed To Be Turning in Critical Central Campaign.

Foreign 'War Birds' Swoop Down on Japanese Troops, Smash Line

HANKOW, China, Feb. 18.—(P)

China appears to be turning the tide, military observers declared tonight, in the great campaign in central China on which may depend the outcome of her resistance against Japan.

China's forces, especially her air corps, seem at least to have found their stride, these sources said. Not only have the Chinese regained their shattered morale, they said, but they also have resorted to aggressive tactics instead of fighting always on the defensive.

From Shanghai came reports tonight that General Iwane Matsui had been replaced as commander of Japanese forces in central China, now the scene of bitter fighting for control of the Lunghai railway.

While Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's regular troops have scored a number of notable successes during the past week, foreign observers reported a new people's war corps and roving guerrilla units have become a formidable arm of China's defenses.

Air Force Leads Way.

China's air force, strengthened by the 'foreign legion' which includes many American and other foreign volunteer pilots, has become an important factor in the war.

Today over this temporary capital of China the Chinese air force scored its most spectacular triumph of the war, shooting down five raiding Japanese planes in flames on the outskirts of the city.

Fast Soviet-made planes, some believed flown by Americans, power-dived to smash the Japanese formations. The raiders totaled 30; a like number of Chinese planes rose to meet them.

Chinese army headquarters reported 3,000 out of 10,000 Japanese troops which had crossed to the north bank of the Hwai river in Anhwei province had been annihilated and the rest had retreated to the south shore.

Chinese Advance.

Steady Chinese advances south along the Tientsin-Pukow railroad, on the eastern side of the 180-mile wide Lunghai corridor, were said to have carried to within 10 miles of Pengpu and to have inflicted heavy Japanese casualties.

Chinese planes, some flown by foreign pilots, were reported to have trapped several hundred Japanese by destroying a pontoon bridge behind them and to have harassed the Japanese rear guard near Pengpu.

Japanese reported today they had opened a major offensive in south Shansi province where they were attacking 20 divisions of mixed Communists and Chinese troops on four fronts.

COX SCENTS 'TRAP'
ON PAY-HOUR BILL

Predicts House Rules Group Will Not Favor Even Ramspeck's Plan.

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.
WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—Sensing an administration "trap" to force final passage of the original Black-Connelly wage-hour bill, Representative Eugene E. Cox, of Georgia, predicted today that the house rules committee, of which he is a member, again would refuse to grant a rule for consideration of the legislation, even though redrafted in much milder form.

The Cox statement was directed at the proposal laid before the house labor committee yesterday by Representative Robert Ramspeck, who, in an effort to break the deadlock over labor standards legislation, presented a new formula giving the federal trade commission authority to treat wages and hours in industrial employment as a factor in determining unfair trade practices.

Sees Underlying Purpose.

While describing the Ramspeck proposal as "more sane and more reasonable than the pending bill," and crediting his Georgia colleague with "the best intentions," Representative Cox suggested that the underlying purpose behind the new administration moves might be to get a wage-hour bill in conference between the two houses, where it would be easier for advocates of the pending Black-Connelly measure, already passed by the senate, to prevail.

"I have carefully examined the Ramspeck proposal for wage-hour legislation," said Representative Cox. "It is, of course, more sane and reasonable than the pending bill and is offered with best intentions."

"But permitting this measure to come to the floor of the house would mean that in the end we would get out of it the old Black-Connelly bill, which would be the death-knell to further industrial development of the south."

Cancellation of Windsors' Trip
To Atlanta Laid to Wrong Number

(Copyright, 1938, for The Constitution and the North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.)

PARIS, Feb. 18.—(By Wire) It can now be revealed that cancellation of the Duke and Duchess of Windsors' intended visit to the United States was the result of an accident. Two days before the date set for sailing, the Windsors dined with the American ambassador, William C. Bullitt, who has become one of their closest friends. They consulted him about the clamor which had arisen in America against Charles Bedaux, and Bullitt, taking the matter very lightly, told the Windsors they should not pay undue attention to a "storm in a teacup" and they

Chief Executive Says Administration Goal Is To Place Employment Business Activity at Peak.

Further Devaluation of Dollar Not Planned, White House Declares.

Text of Statement on Prices Appears in Page 10.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—(P) President Roosevelt said today that the first necessity of the present economic situation was a limited increase in prices, achieved without inflation and without a material advance in the cost of living.

All the policies of his administration are now directed toward that goal, he told reporters at a unique press conference, devoted to a clarification of his price views and plans for ending the recession, which some had recently criticized as contradictory and inconsistent.

Balance Sought.

Not all prices must go up, however, he emphasized; some, in fact, should come down. The general objective, he said, was a balanced price system. Only when prices reach such a balance, the President asserted, are employment and general business activity at a peak.

As specific measures for bringing about the readjustment he is seeking, Mr. Roosevelt mentioned the crop control bill, intended to raise the price of farm products, the housing bill, intended to cut the price of building materials, an increased relief appropriation and the "easy credit" policy of the treasury and federal reserve board.

R. F. C. Ready to Lend.

(Soon after Mr. Roosevelt spoke, Chairman Jesse H. Jones of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation's coffers open once more to qualified businesses desiring to borrow. Few such loans had been made since last October. Jones said $1,500,000,000 is now on hand for the purpose.)

Mr. Roosevelt, asking himself whether his price program involved inflation, or a further devaluation of the dollar, answered with an emphatic no. When that news reached Wall Street, stock market prices slumped. Later they became steady, and then weakened again.

The President said he had consulted various government agencies on current problems, and added that they had worked out a statement upon which all were agreed. He thought it a pretty good thing that so many experts could agree upon so complex a subject.

He read the statement, which was signed by Secretary Morgenthau, Secretary Perkins, Secretary Wallace and Chairman Eccles, of the Federal Reserve Board. The President left no doubt that he was in thorough agreement.

The experts had prepared some charts, too, Mr. Roosevelt said.

Tornado Leaves City a Foot-Deep Mud Puddle Strewn With Debris

This shambles of steel and wood and brick was part of a prosperous north Louisiana oil town, Rodessa, when a tornado thundered on the community Thursday night, leaving at least 25 persons dead and scores injured. The town is a pathetic picture of desolation. Heavy rains made the entire section a foot-deep mud puddle. Wreckage was strewn along a path 200 yards wide and a mile and a half long. The twisted lifted buildings and heavy oil machinery, tossing them like matchwood for blocks.

Colonel Olds Visits Ortiz and Delivers Message From Roosevelt.

BUENOS AIRES, Feb. 18.—(P)

Six United States air corps bombers today hurdled the lofty, snow-capped Andes and landed here for a warmly welcomed goodwill call at the end of a record-breaking 5,200-mile flight from Miami, Fla.

But it remained for the bomber commanded by Major J. V. Meloy, which had been delayed in Lima because of propeller trouble, to join its mates with a new record tacked to its tail.

Landing in the midst of a rainstorm approximately six hours after the other five, the "crippled" bomber completed the hop from Lima in 11 hours and 10 minutes, shearing more than an hour from the time of its sister ships.

The six bombers carried 48 men besides the flight commander, Lieutenant Colonel Robert Olds. Major Meloy cut approximately 500 miles from the distance covered by the five ships that preceded him by flying in almost a straight line southeast from Lima. The others went by way of Santiago, Chile.

Colonel Olds tonight paid a courtesy visit to President-elect Roberto M. Ortiz and delivered a message from President Roosevelt. Ortiz congratulated him on the flight and thanked him for the message.

The pilots and crews of the six flying fortresses rode around in style tonight with the keys to the Argentine military airbase in their pockets.

An automobile firm supplied 11 new automobiles and 11 chauffeurs for officers of the bombers. The city of Buenos Aires provided license plates marked "Official."

The squadron came to Buenos Aires in connection with Sunday's inauguration of President-elect Roberto M. Ortiz.

Among the new aviation records set by the goodwill squadron was 34 hours and 14 minutes total time between Miami and Buenos Aires and 28 hours and two minutes flying time.

Modification of Profits and Capital Gains Levies Win Tentative Approval

A tornado which ripped the heart out of this northwest Louisiana oil town of 2,000 population last night killed 25 persons.

A survey by the Associated Press late today showed three persons were missing and 41 were injured. Any others were believed slightly hurt.

Volunteer and relief workers continued a frantic search of the shambles which only a few hours ago was the thriving main street of one of the world's richest oil sections.

Thunderstorms yesterday, last night and today smacked sections of Texas, Arkansas, Tennessee and Mississippi but the concentrated might of the elements fell on Rodessa.

A storm dipped into north Mississippi and caused property damage at Water Valley, but no casualties were reported.

Torrential rains, estimated to total from three to four inches, fell in west Tennessee and eastern Arkansas last night and today. Creeks were out of bounds in some sections and seven flooded Arkansas highways were closed to traffic. The rising White and Black rivers in Arkansas threatened overflows.

Governor Carl E. Bailey ordered the Arkansas National Guard to prepare for instant mobilization in the event mass evacuation and refugee relief efforts were necessary.

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—(P)

A Danvers, Mass., cafeteria manager's $100,000 alienation of affections suit against Bernarr Macfadden, 69-year-old physical culture exponent and publisher, went to a mixed supreme court jury tonight.

If reached, the verdict will be sealed and presented Monday.

Principal testimony was a deposition by the plaintiff's wife, Mrs. Sorter C. Adams, 45-year-old Joplin, Mo., masseuse, describing alleged intimacies with Macfadden. Adams related wooing his future wife at Battle Creek, Mich., and said she had a "very, very warm regard" for him until she met Macfadden.

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—(P)

Three weeks of mortified seclusion ended for Ernst Reichner today and he resumed his usual place in the business and social worlds, confident that no one would point the "finger of derision" at his bald pate.

Reichner started a frenzied thumbing of law books last week by bringing a $5,000 damage suit against a barber who, he said, had mistaken his toupee for the McCoy—with disastrous results.

The hapless barber, one Vincenzo Paglialonga, went straight away to a lawyer who, after considerable reflection, decided that

First Such Order Prevents Baptising Until Citizenship Determined.

(Copyright, 1938, By United Press)

VIENNA, Saturday, Feb. 19—

Austria's first anti-Semitic decree, ordered by the new Nazi minister of interior after his conference with Fuehrer Adolf Hitler in Berlin, was issued today as the government announced that "no further measures" would be taken by Hitler to tighten his grip on the nation's affairs.

Minister of Interior and Public Security Arthur von Seyss-Inquart ordered mayors throughout Austria to cease collaborating with priests in baptizing Jews if the citizenship of the Jews was questioned.

The decree, preventing Jews from becoming baptized into the Christian faith pending determination of their citizenship, particularly affects thousands of German Jewish refugees who came to Austria after the Nazi accession to power in Germany.

There are about 192,000 Jews in Austria, less than 3 per cent of the population.

The government's official announcement that "no further measures" were contemplated—an announcement made simultaneously in Vienna and Berlin—was accompanied by a statement that Austrian Nazis, and all other political groups outside the Fatherland Front, will remain outlawed.

Hitler, it was announced, has arranged to take measures to uphold Austria's sovereignty by prohibiting the German Nazis from interfering in the conduct of Austrian internal affairs.

the fault really lay with the wig-maker.

The wigmaker had no business making such a perfect wig that it deceived even an experienced barber like Paglialonga, the lawyer reasoned, and therefore the wigmaker should be made a codefendant in the suit.

Both pleased and alarmed, the wigmaker, of Fifth Avenue, hit upon a happy solution. He offered to fashion a new wig free of charge, hand Reichner $100 to boot, and step back to receive the plaudits of all peace-lovers.

Berlin Indicates Vienna Gained Import Concessions in Exchange for Co-operation With Reich

Chamberlain Calls Extraordinary Session of Cabinet on Situation.

By The Associated Press.

LONDON, Feb. 18.—France urged Great Britain today to join her in a strong joint effort to safeguard the vital interests of the two democracies against Germany's strides through Austria toward a Nazified Central Europe.

At the same time Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain tested Italy's apparent acquiescence in Reichsfuehrer Hitler's coup by demanding flatly whether Premier Mussolini wanted friendship with Great Britain.

France's demand was presented personally to Foreign Secretary Eden by Ambassador Charles Corbin after the foreign secretary and Chamberlain held two long conferences with the Italian ambassador, Dino Grandi. Grandi then talked at length with Rome by telephone.

Diplomatic quarters said France felt strongly Austria should be helped to defend what was left of her independence and urged closer contact on a situation described as of grave concern to all Europe.

In Vienna the tide of opposition toward the Hitlerization of Austria was rising. Monarchists sought to join with Socialists to fight the inroads Hitler and his Austrian Nazi followers were making in the government of an "autonomous and independent Austria."

Members of the Fatherland Front, Austria's only legal political party, cried out openly against Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg's statements of his submission to Hitler's demand. They were told tartly they had been called to listen.

Important Concessions.

A reliable source in Berlin indicated, however, that Austria had gained important concessions in exchange for co-operation with Germany. These were said to have included religious guarantees so sweeping that Hitler had agreed to redefine Nazism as solely a political and not a religious movement.

Schuschnigg also was said to

Agricultural Leaders Clash Over Reciprocal Trade Pacts

Taber Attacks Imports Which Create Idle Acres, Wilson Debates Defense.

DES MOINES, Iowa, Feb. 18. (P)—Two agricultural leaders, one representing the government and the other 800,000 organized farmers, clashed in debating of reciprocal trade agreements tonight before the National Farm Institute.

Said Louis J. Taber, master of the National Grange: "Allow me to proclaim that the National Grange desires world trade and the promotion of world peace, but will never look with favor on the importation of any commodity from any place in the world if the net result of that importation is to increase the idle acres and the idle men in America."

Need Expert Market.

Said M. L. Wilson, undersecretary of agriculture: "The really important problem is to discover a market for exports rather than to keep out imports. Among our largest markets for wheat during the present season have been the Netherlands, Belgium and Sweden, with all of which we have concluded reciprocal trade agreements."

Hull Speaks Tonight.

Both Wilson and Taber spoke before a dinner group attending the Des Moines Chamber of Commerce's second annual farm institute, which annually in open form discusses a subject of prime interest to agriculture.

Secretary of State Hull, who has effected the administration's reciprocal trade agreements, was scheduled to speak tomorrow night.

Sir Eric advised the Duke to trust the opinion of the man on the spot. Thus the decision to remain in Paris was arrived at immediately. On the following day, Sir Eric wrote the Duke, congratulating him upon the fact that he had trusted the opinion of the person best qualified to appreciate the whole situation and referred to the conversation they had had together. The Duke answered that he was at a loss to understand the ambassador's letter, since he had not spoken to him on the telephone. Soon afterward, the mystery was cleared up, but too late to go back upon his decision.

1938 COTTON QUOTA IS SET BY WALLACE

New Farm Law's Provision for Meeting Surplus Crop Is Invoked.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—(P)—Secretary Wallace proclaimed marketing quotas today on the 1938 crops of cotton and flue-cured and dark types of tobacco, thus invoking the new farm law's provision for meeting surpluses.

The quota system—a mechanism which officials say is designed to keep surpluses off the market until they are needed—will be voted upon March 12 by affected producers in 20 states. Two-thirds of those voting must approve to put the quotas into effect.

Officials announced that, where cotton and tobacco are grown in the same locality, the referendum for each commodity would be at the same time and place, but that the vote on each commodity would be separate. The polls, which will be established by local farmer committees, will open not later than 9 a. m. and close at 7 p. m. Each producer who grew cotton, or either type of the tobacco in 1937, will be entitled to vote.

26,300,000 Acres Set.

Under the quotas, the total supply of cotton which would be permitted to move into market channels free of penalties would be that produced on 26,300,000 acres. If the yield were at the average rate of the last 10 years, the amount would be about 11,230,000 bales, compared with the record crop of 18,747,000 last year.

One objective of this program would be to divert from cotton approximately 8,000,000 acres planted to that crop last year.

Wallace estimated the cotton surplus from previous years would total about 12,000,000 bales on August 1, the date the new program usually starts to market. Officials said this was almost enough to supply normal domestic and export needs for a whole year.

The flue-cured tobacco marketing quota was set at 705,000,000 pounds, compared with last year's production of 850,000,000 pounds. The quota for the dark tobacco was fixed at 145,000,000 pounds, compared with 158,000,000 harvested last year.

States Listed.

States in which the cotton referendum will be conducted are Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, Oklahoma, North and South Carolina, Texas, Virginia, Kentucky, Tennessee, Illinois, Missouri, Arizona, Kansas, New Mexico and California. States in which the tobacco referendum will be held are Kentucky, Tennessee, Virginia, Indiana, North and South Carolina, Georgia, Florida and Alabama.

The national cotton acreage allotment will be apportioned among individual farmers by local growers' committees. If the quota is approved, each producer would be limited to the sale of cotton grown on his allotted area. If he sold more, he would be subject to a penalty tax of 2 cents a pound on the excess sales.

Similarly, the national tobacco referendum quota will be apportioned among growers in terms of pounds. Sale of more than a grower's allotment would subject him to a tax of 50 per cent of the market price on the excess.

GEORGIAN QUITS F. B. I.

CLEVELAND, Feb. 18.—(P)—Theodore M. Stapleton, agent in charge of the Federal Bureau of Investigation office here since last July, resigned today, effective tomorrow. Stapleton, native of Colquitt, Ga., accepted a post in the legal department of E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co., at Wilmington, Del.

A second course the President mentioned was to build the ships in existing government yards and finance them with government funds.

Still another was to build new ways and equipment in the navy yards.

FRANCIS W. CLARKE REPORTED BETTER

Executive Editor's Condition Remains Critical.

Some improvement in the condition of Francis W. Clarke, executive editor of The Constitution, over his condition yesterday morning, was reported by attending physicians last night at Piedmont hospital, where he is critically ill with pneumonia.

Mr. Clarke's condition was unfavorable early yesterday and during the morning he received a blood transfusion. His reaction was not immediately good, but early last night a turn for the better was reported.

AMERICANS KILLED IN INSURGENT COUP

Rebels Advance to Within Four Miles of Flaming Teruel.

SARAGOZZA, Spain, Feb. 18.—(UP)—Many American volunteers of the Loyalist international brigades were killed in hand-to-hand fighting today in an attempt to stem Nationalist troops advancing down the Alfambra valley to within four miles of Loyalist-held Teruel.

Whole sections of the 1,000-year-old city seized by the government last December 21, were reported in flames.

The 11-mile Nationalist drive, which caught the enemy unawares, was estimated to have cost 500 Loyalist lives.

Nationalists claimed the offensive was a brilliant military coup and caught the Loyalists unprepared. The government troops had massed 38 miles to the north in the Montañan sector to stop a Nationalist feint there.

LOYALIST WARPLANES ATTACK FRENCH SHIP

PERPIGNAN, France, Feb. 18.—(P)—Spanish warplanes attempted to bomb the French destroyer La Cordeliere twice today off Cerbera, but failed to hit her.

The ship, it was learned, was attacked the first time by government planes eight miles off the coast. The planes apparently mistook the destroyer for one of the insurgent ships which shelled the coast off northeast Spain earlier in the day.

AMERICAN TO FACE COURT MARTIAL

GIBRALTAR, Feb. 18.—(P)—Official insurgent sources in Algeria said tonight that Guy Wilkinson Stuart Castle, 22-year-old American volunteer, had been taken from La Linea, Spain, to Seville to face court martial on a charge of attempted desertion.

The youth arrived at La Linea from Seville yesterday and no reason was given for his return. It was understood he was badly injured in both legs.

His mother, Mrs. Harriet Bayne Castle, of Oxen Hill, Md., already had interviewed insurgent authorities in Seville in an effort to gain her son's custody.

BILLS BAR U. S. LOANS TO COUNTRIES AT WAR

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—(P)—Representative Collins, Democrat, Mississippi, proposed today two constitutional amendments which would bar the United States and all citizens from making loans, gifts or pledges and from extending credits to any nation engaged in armed combat or any citizen of a country so engaged.

WHOLLY MAKE ALLOTMENTS?

Q. Who is charged with the responsibility of making individual farm allotments?

A. The county and community committees.

Q. What is the marketing quota of the individual farmer?

A. It is the cotton produced on his allotted acres, or the normal production on his allotted acres, whichever is the greater.

Q. What is the penalty for marketing cotton produced in 1938 in excess of the farm's quota?

A. Two cents a pound on the excess production sold, to be collected by the buyer.

Q. If quotas are in effect, what is the disadvantage to a farmer if he knowingly plants cotton on his farm in excess of his acreage allotment?

A. He loses (1) all soil conservation payments; (2) cotton price adjustment payments; and (3) the opportunity to obtain a loan on the marketing quota for the farm.

Q. Do all farms have to pay the penalty on excess cotton?

A. No, the penalty does not apply to cotton produced on any farm which has received a cotton acreage allotment, and on which the production is 1,000 pounds of lint cotton or less.

PROVISION FOR REVIEW.

Q. What provision is there for a review of a producer's marketing quota which seems unfair to him?

A. Provision is made for appeals to a review committee of farmers other than members of the local committees which made the allotment.

Q. May marketing quotas be altered after they become effective?

A. The secretary of agriculture may, under certain conditions, terminate quotas or he may increase by a uniform percentage the amount of cotton producers may market, in order to make a normal supply of cotton available. The act does not give the secretary the power to decrease quotas.

Retired Farmer Weds Again at 83; Out for 'Maybe Another Family'

By JACK SPALDING III.

John B. Broadwell, of Crabapple, broke almost every farming record possible for a north Georgian and retired a few years ago, content.

Yesterday, his 83rd birthday, he smashed a few traditions. At 11 o'clock in the morning he married the former Mrs. Nell Brewer Harris, of Atlanta, 37 years his junior. Instead of receiving presents from his family and friends, Mr. Broadwell gave. His one surviving child, a daughter, received a hundred-dollar bill, each grandchild present, and there were five, received $50, and each great-grandchild $25.

Maybe Another Family.

"I've worked hard and saved all my life," said Mr. Broadwell as he brought in an armful of wood for the fire, "and now I'm out for a good time, and maybe another family."

He and his bride are planning a wedding trip to Columbia, S. C., to introduce the bride to some of her newly acquired grandchildren and great-grandchildren who were unable to attend the ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. Broadwell met when Mrs. Harris, a trained nurse, came to the Broadwell home to nurse the first Mrs. Broadwell in her last illness.

The Broadwell home, on the outskirts of Crabapple, about six miles north of Roswell, is pleasantly situated in the middle of the rolling acres of Mr. Broadwell's famous farm. Shaded by large trees and flanked by closely clipped boxwood hedges, it was originally owned by Mr. Broadwell's father, an early north Georgia pioneer.

Mr. Broadwell and his first wife moved there about 60 years ago, bringing all their worldly possessions in a wheelbarrow. It was then a typical north Georgia farm, with half an acre considered a good cotton crop. Within

JURORS DISCUSS CITY PURCHASES

Foreman Says No Conclusion Yet Reached in Quiz.

Purchases of sewer pipe by the city purchasing department, under Fulton grand jury investigation for the past two weeks, were discussed at yesterday's regular session of that body, Jury Foreman E. G. Decker revealed.

Final decision on the matter would be made public in the form of special presentations at the end of the January-February term, he said, adding that no conclusions had been reached on the matter.

During the investigation, Lloyd Walker, city purchasing agent, and members of the purchasing committee of city council were called as witnesses. The inquiry was asked by Mayor Hartford after testimony in a federal court trial seemed to put the purchasing department "under a cloud."

LASSETTER'S MOTHER PAID FINAL TRIBUTE

Funeral services for Mrs. Jessie V. Lassetter, 67, who died Thursday at her home in Jacksonville, Fla., were held at 11 o'clock yesterday morning in the Lutheran church, Jacksonville, Ga., with the Rev. Mr. Couch officiating. Burial was in the churchyard.

Mrs. Lassetter was the mother of Lewis A. Lassetter, of The Constitution's advertising staff, and the widow of D. L. Lassetter, prominent merchant and banker of Marietta county.

RFC OFFERS LOANS OF $1,500,000,000 TO SPUR BUSINESS

Action Follows Roosevelt
Request on Extension of Credit to Jones.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—(AP)—The Roosevelt administration, loosening Reconstruction Finance Corporation purse strings that had been tightened last October, offered $1,500,000,000 worth of loans to businessmen today. The action resulted from the current economic recession.

"It is my wish," President Roosevelt wrote to Jesse H. Jones, chairman of the RFC, "that you make credit available to all deserving borrowers to which you are authorized to lend, especially loans that will maintain or increase employment."

Jones explained that this meant industry, railroads and banks, although he expected no demand from banks. He predicted the loan demand from all sources would "not be more than a few hundred million dollars."

Promising expeditious handling of all loan applications, he said a borrower able to meet requirements at once could get a loan within a few days. The loan offer was made partly in response to the request of the recent small businessmen's conference.

Jones emphasized he was not relaxing any of the collateral requirements under which about 2,600 industrial firms borrowed $105,000,000 in the three years before the RFC curtailed lending last October for economy reasons. He said he would accept any collateral which would "give reasonable assurance of repayment of the loan."

Loans will be made for any period up to 1945 and will ordinarily bear 5 per cent interest, in the case of industry, and 4 per cent in the case of railroads. On some industrial loans made through small banks, a 6 per cent rate may be charged, however.

Applications for loans may be made at any bank or at any of the 28 RFC branch offices located in the cities including:

Atlanta, Birmingham, Charlotte, N. C.; Dallas, Houston, Jacksonville, Fla.; Little Rock, Louisville, Ky.; Nashville, New Orleans, Richmond, St. Louis and San Antonio.

The Pulse of the Public

The columns of The Constitution are always open to the expressions of the public, regardless of the opinion expressed. The only limitation on communications is that they shall be signed, be brief—preferably not longer than two or three hundred words—and not be libelous. All communications will be subject to editing, and none will be returned unless postage is inclosed.

EDITORIAL APPRECIATED

Editor Constitution: I wish to express my deep appreciation of the strong editorial commending the United Hospitals Service Association which appeared recently in The Constitution.

Assuring you of my appreciation of your able and forceful editorial commending this new service organization, I am

Yours very truly,

FORMER PRISON EMPLOYEE ATTACKS CONWAY ARTICLE

Editor Constitution: I have just read Mr. Ralph Jones' column in Wednesday's Constitution in reference to Bryan Conway's article in the current issue of The Saturday Evening Post about Alcatraz prison, and Al Capone. If the rest of Conway's article is on a par with his statements about Capone while serving in the federal prison here, it lacks a long way of being the truth.

Al Capone had no bodyguard here, with or without knives, nor did he hand out any hundred-dollar bills. I was employed at the prison here for seven years and was there when Capone was. Capone did not live like any king, but wore overalls and worked at a bench in the shoeshop along with other prisoners, and he put in a full day's work.

My duty for a long time was to discharge prisoners who had served their terms, or were being released for other reasons. Prisoners had all their money taken from them when they entered the penitentiary here and it was deposited in the bank until they were discharged. They got no more money until they left, and were given gratuities ranging from $1.25 to $20 each, depending on the amount of money they had of their own to their credit and the distance they had to travel to get home.

There was, and probably is yet, a commissary at the penitentiary, and prisoners were allowed to purchase coupon books, with which they could purchase various knick-knacks and necessities, such as candy, tooth paste, etc. Furthermore, they were limited as to the amounts they could purchase during the month.

Now, the misinformation given in the Post will be broadly disseminated and the wrong impression given, just as was the widely read stuff about Georgia chain gangs written by that escaped prisoner some years ago, and which was portrayed in the movies and which is now the cause of suits in the courts.

Yours very truly,
A. O. BREWTON,
Atlanta, February 18, 1938.

CHAIRMAN THANKS PAPER FOR CAMPAIGN AID

Editor Constitution: As chairman of the Georgia committee for the celebration of the President's birthday, in the fight on infantile paralysis, I want to thank you personally and on behalf of the entire committee for the splendid co-operation of your newspaper and your staff during the recent successful campaign for funds.

At all times your newspaper and your representatives were most courteous, considerate and co-operative, and through you, I want to thank each and all of them who contacted either me or the committee. It was this splendid assistance rendered the committee which resulted in the success of the drive, and I thank you.

EDGAR E. DUNLAP,
Gainesville, Ga., Feb. 18, 1938.

LINCOLN SAW PROPERTY AS REWARD OF LABOR

Editor Constitution: I happened to run across the following quotation from Lincoln. It seems so appropriate to these times I pass it on to you.

Henry Grady said "Let him learn on the government for nothing that his own arm can do. . . . Let him cultivate independence to the point of sacrifice and learn that humble things with unadorned liberty are better than splendors bought with its price."

But now, the quotation: "Property is the fruit of labor; property is desirable; is a positive good in the world. That who should be rich shows that others may become rich and, hence, is just encouragement to industry and enterprise. Let not him who is houseless pull down the house of another, but let him labor diligently and build one for himself, thus, by example, assuring that his own shall be safe from violence when built."

H. D. SMITH,
Hogansville, Ga., Feb. 18, 1938.

FEDERAL OFFICIAL THANKS CONSTITUTION

Editor Constitution: Now that the general assembly has enacted the penal reform program in great part into law, I think the press of the state deserves a special word of approval for its support of these measures.

It is entirely in keeping with the long record of civic leadership of The Constitution that it took an able part in advocating these measures.

What has been done is at best a beginning, but we are convinced that those who will direct the new system will be able with the powers now given to them and with continued public support to give Georgia a penal system of which the state and the south can be proud.

JAMES P. DAVIS,
Executive Secretary, Prison Industries Reorganization Administration,

MUSIC FESTIVAL GREAT SUCCESS

Editor Constitution: I want to thank you and your staff for your help making our music festival at the university one of the great successes of the year. More than 150 guests registered, and I feel that you had a large part in its success.

HUGH HODGSON,
Director, Department of Music,

Think, Then Speak—Naturally, Convening Georgia Teachers Urge

Don't 'Listen and Say Nothing,' But 'Listen, Avoid Other's Mistakes,' Is Theory Emphasized at Annual State Meeting in Atlanta.

Be natural!

Think twice before you speak—once about what you will say and the second time about how to say it.

A poll of the speech teachers of Georgia yesterday revealed that these are the two principal rules they would stress if they could speak to Mr. and Mrs. Atlanta. Of course, the speech teachers said other things—and very correctly.

"The average man should speak correctly, effectively, but not affectedly," declared Miss Ruth Draper, teacher of speech at Washington Seminary and chairman of the banquet committee. "Accents are no longer in order and the person who speaks naturally is the successful speaker."

Miss Draper emphasized that southerners should not try to talk like easterners or western residents in an effort to appear educated. She said no brogue or accent is correct—in itself—these days.

Listen to Learn.

Listening was emphasized for those who want to learn to speak correctly by other speech teachers at the conference. The point was not to "listen and say nothing"—like father's advice—but to "listen and then avoid the mistakes of others."

"Just listening to others and learning how smoothly or roughly they talk is a good thing for any person wanting to improve his speech," both Miss Edna West, teacher at Bessie Tift College, Forsyth, president of the conference, and Gwynne Burrows, teacher at Commercial High school, said.

"Speech work is nine-tenths ear work," declared Burrows, who instructs 757 students a day at the high school. "Both the movies and the radio are helping folks who want really to improve their voices."

"Listen—with an aim," advised Miss West. "Speech is such a habit, we subconsciously pass over the mistakes we hear in the speech of others, and never profit by these mistakes."

All the teachers were in agreement on certain phases of modern speech. The first of these is that more children are interested in speech now than ever before—because of the varied professions, especially radio and lecturing, that offer jobs.

Radio as Teacher.

Next, the teachers agreed that the radio is helping improve speech among everyone. We cut the radio off, one teacher said, not because we are tired of listening, but because we are tired of listening to the announcer or speaker. If his voice is smooth, we listen far into the night.

The annual convention of Georgia speech teachers began yesterday morning at the Biltmore hotel. An address by Governor Rivers, emphasizing the gains in education made by the state during the past year, opened the sessions. Mrs. W. W. Davidson, of Atlanta, gave a corrective speech demonstration, following which Mark Smith, superintendent of schools at Thomaston, spoke on "The Place of Speech in the High School." Under the direction of J. J. Brooks, who teaches dramatics at Bass Junior High school, a demonstration in creative dramatics was featured in the afternoon sessions.

Also, Burrows spoke on "Radio Preparation," outlining the work in Commercial High school's studio—where a complete broadcasting station is operated each day—for students only. Burrows later supervised the broadcast of a radio play for the group.

M. E. Thompson, of the State Department of Education, was guest speaker at the banquet last night. Approximately 40 persons were in attendance.

Today's sessions will include addresses and demonstrations by Eleanor Moses, of Statesboro; Alwood Hudson, of Thomasville; Mary Thomas Maxwell and choir, of the Georgia State College for Women, and a business meeting. Last official business of the conference will be the election of officers for next year.

TROLLEY HITS BUS, KNOCKS IT 15 FEET

Two Injured in Crash on West Peachtree Street.

Two men were injured and several bus passengers shaken up when an inbound trolley car struck the rear of a Morningside bus on West Peachtree street yesterday as it drew over to the curb to release passengers.

J. K. Morrow, of 648 Cumberland road, was reported in "fair" condition at Crawford W. Long hospital, where he was admitted with a head injury. Georgia Power Company officials said H. L. Spahr, of 226 Eleventh street, member of the State Industrial Board, was treated for a cut on the nose.

The crash occurred when the bus, operated by C. L. Carter, pulled over to the curb near the Baltimore place intersection. The trolley, operated by H. A. Lee, failed to stop in time and crashed into the bus, knocking it about 15 feet down the grade and hurling bus passengers to the floor. No one in the street car was injured.

CONGRESS WARNED ON 'AERIAL MINES'

Inventor Tells Naval Hearing Planes Can Blanket Sea Areas.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—(AP)—Congress received a tip from an inventor today that the administration's $1,050,000,000 naval expansion program would have to be revised drastically due to the development of a mysterious new "aerial mine."

Lester P. Barlow, of Stamford, Conn., the inventor, indicated belief that the device, dropped by bombing planes from tremendous heights, could "blanket" an area 10 miles square in three or four minutes.

He told the house committee considering the naval expansion bill that he was the first man to use bombs in aerial warfare.

Barlow declared 12 years ago that he had developed a "destructive-flying torpedo" with which "we can hit Chicago 50 times a minute from Washington."

Absolves Government

JAMES S. KEMPER.

PRESENT RECESSION LAID TO BUSINESS

James Kemper, Insurance Official, Absolves Government as Cause.

The troubles of business and the present recession in particular are more the fault of business than the government, was the opinion expressed last night by James S. Kemper, president of Lumberman's Mutual Casualty Insurance Company.

"This economic phase has much in common with the recent depression," he said. "Prices climbed faster than purchasing power until the economic structure became top-heavy and collapsed."

The government—the "goat" in most businessmen's statements about the economic situation—was found by Kemper not so much at fault as business.

"Businessmen saddled themselves with excessive inventories. Strikes caused raised wages and resulted in higher prices—but prices rose faster than the wages. The only blame that might be placed on the government, in my opinion, was in too great encouragement of strikes."

He expressed the opinion recovery would come as soon as the market absorbs the inventories on hand.

He plans to leave tonight for Florida.

British Housing Expert Urges Atlantans To Raze Slums

Captain R. L. Reiss Advises Realty Men To Back Public Projects.

Most cities in the United States are faced with a big housing problem, Captain Richard L. Reiss, British housing expert, told members of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce at a luncheon meeting yesterday.

In some cities as much as one-half of the population was living in substandard housing, he said. He outlined England's experience in slum clearance and confided the United States could solve its problem with the right type of program.

The housing expert encouraged Atlanta real estate men to take an interest in public housing projects. The argument that subsidized public housing would interfere with private enterprise was erroneous, he said.

"Cleaning up slum areas will actually increase the volume of business for private enterprise because blighted areas spread easily, reducing the value of neighboring property," he declared.

Such low-cost projects, he said, also would improve public health. He added that it was better to spend money on prevention than on cure.

"If you allow a large number of people in the slum areas to become ill, you cause a demand for a larger number of beds in your city hospitals, which adds to your total cost of city government," he explained.

Captain Reiss advocated local housing authorities to administer the low-rent projects and recommend that they be subsidized by national taxes.

S. C. SENATE OKAYS APPROPRIATION BILL

$13,370,321 Figure Exceeds House Measure by More Than $1,000,000.

COLUMBIA, S. C., Feb. 18.—(AP) The senate approved today an appropriations bill of $13,370,321 for 1938-39.

The figure was $1,000,000 greater than that approved by the house and $1,500,000 greater than present-year expenditures.

In section-by-section consideration of the measure, the senate added $333,420 to the $1,036,901 finance committee report.

RESCUERS SIGHT CAMP ON ICE FLOE

Scientists Welcome Ship 'With All Our Hearts.'

MOSCOW, Feb. 18.—(AP)—The flag-bedecked icebreaker Murman today pressed within sight of the drifting ice floe camp of four Russian scientists off the coast of Greenland.

"We have entered the zone of pack ice surrounding the ice floe, which is easily visible five miles to the west," the Murman radioed.

The vessel was proceeding on a northerly course, toward the camp occupied by Ivan Papanin, leader of the expedition, and three companions since last May.

"With binoculars we can see distinctly the flag of the U. S. S. R. in Papanin's camp," the Murman advised.

Papanin radioed the icebreaker "We see you quite well and welcome you with all our hearts, best wishes."

HOLDUP SUSPECT SHOT IN RUNNING GUN FIGHT

TRENTON, Feb. 18.—(AP)—A man giving the name of Charles L. Lane, of Pennsylvania, was critically wounded by a policeman during a running gun fight near here today following a killing station holdup at Fort Payne, Ala., last night.

Meanwhile, a posse of officers and shotgun carrying citizens searched the hills near here for Lane's three companions.

Policeman M. M. Robertson said he shot Lane after Lane and his companions had abandoned their car and were running into the woods. Robertson said he and a fellow officer had exchanged shots with the men for some miles before the car was abandoned.

At Fort Payne, Vance Carden, filling station employee, said the men held him up last night and locked him in a back room of the station. After taking a small amount of cash, they left a note saying "we thank you," and signed it "Sneaky Pete and His Hoodlums." Carden forced his way out of the room and notified officers.

High Window Peepers Is Six Feet, Seven

BUFFALO, N. Y., Feb. 18.—(AP)—For a month police puzzled over complaints of nurses in a hospital that they saw a man peering into their dormitory windows.

The windows were placed high above the ground, and investigators could find no evidence of a ladder being used.

The mystery was solved today when Edward Chapman, 18, was sentenced to serve six months after he pleaded guilty to a "peeping Tom" charge.

Chapman stands 6 feet 7 inches in height.

More Than 16,000 Women Attend Constitution's School of Cooking

Fifth Annual 'Term' at Georgia Theater Lasting Four Days Is Brought to Close; Housewives Hear Miss Ruth Chambers.

The Constitution's most successful cooking school, which drew more than 16,000 women in four days, closed yesterday morning at the Georgia theater, amid praise of housewives.

It was the fifth consecutive school to be sponsored by the Constitution and to be taught by Miss Ruth Chambers, all of which have been pronounced successful by both housewives and co-operating merchants. Next year will bring another.

Gives Advice. Miss Chambers brought forth her full coterie of tricks for the full house which greeted her yesterday. As on other days, she gave advice to the housewives on how to shop and cook economically. She again demonstrated her adeptness with actual cooking on the stage.

"These sessions have meant nothing to us," she averred, "if they have not taught us how to be discriminating in the goods we purchase—whether groceries, meat or furniture for the kitchen. Housewives today should demand bargains."

"The housewife of today, being her own boss, has decided to give herself shorter hours, better working conditions and greater rewards. She can do this through her own cleverness in acquiring a better knowledge of foods, of proper food preparation and of the newer, quicker, easier ways of preparing the customary three meals a day."

Happy Family Secret. "She will be eminently successful if she keeps her family healthy and pleased with the meals. We have endeavored to help every woman attending these sessions to learn this secret—which, surely makes for a happy home."

Hundreds of women attended all sessions of the four-day school and were rewarded with a set of helpful cook books, given each day. The reward for perfect attendance, Miss Chambers said, would be a new dish a day for three months, if the women heeded the lessons in the books.

Scores of women who attended the school commented favorably on the theater in which it was held. Many were especially pleased, they said, with the efficiency of the ushers, headed by J. B. Murphy.

Co-operating Firms. The following firms co-operated with The Constitution in making this year's school the best-attended of all:

American Sugar Refining Company, Doughnut Corporation of America, Lever Brothers, Welch Grape Juice Company, Clorox Chemical Company, LaChoy Food Products, Inc., McCormick Company, Northern Paper Mills, National Paper Mills, National Biscuit Company, Wesson Oil & Snowdrift Company, Kellogg Company.

Blue Plate Foods, Inc., Libby, McNeill & Libby, New York Gin Company, Pillsbury Flour Mills, Tea Bureau, Inc., Curtis Publishing Company, Gebhardt Chili Powder Company, Atlanta Gas Company, Atlanta Ice Dealers, Sunlite Bake Shop, Kluge's Department Store, Rich's, Weinstein's Flower Shop, Thomas School of Dancing, Lane Drugstore, Inc., National Life Insurance Company, King Hardware Company, Brownlee & Lively, Ideal Laundry, Lanier & Batt, Sears Farmers' Market, J. M. High Company, Peacock Alley, Diamond Jewelry, Inc., Cochran Furniture Company and Day-an's—The Linen House.

Grand Prize Awarded. The grand prize of the cooking school was won yesterday by Mrs. A. F. Copeland, of 368 Cherokee place, who held the lucky ticket and was awarded a Magic Chef gas range, given by the Atlanta Gas Light Company.

Dozens of other women carried home other prizes. Their names and the prizes they won follow: Mrs. H. D. Carter, 700 Newnan avenue, East Point, an assortment of Domino sugar; Mrs. G. W. New, 951 Drewry street, a quart of Clorox; Clara Trener, 157 West Cain street, a Nesco roaster; Mrs. P. P. Zimmer, Route No. 3, Atlanta, a cake from the Sunlite Bake Shop; Mrs. C. A. Tinsley, of Brookhaven, $5 worth of dry cleaning from the Ideal Laundry; Miss Elizabeth Edwards, 800 Spring street, N. W., a cake from the Sunlite Bake Shop; M. C. Wooten, 1504 Moxley place, six pounds of Snowdrift.

CCC Boys To Receive Life Saving Training

Uncle Sam is taking precautions against fatalities in "the old swimming hole."

For the sixth consecutive year, CCC boys this summer will be given special training in life-saving and aquatic schools for the advancement of safety and aquatic skill will be conducted in all camps in the fourth corps area, it was announced here yesterday.

During this month and March, a sound film "Life Saving" will be shown in each CCC camp in the area and when this film has made the "circuit" of all camps definite plans will be made for this summer's aquatic schools, it was announced.

Last year 604 CCC members were given life saving instructions and 527 of this number received junior or senior life saving certificates.

MESSANGER BOYS

SPUR LIQUOR DRIVE

Corps Obtains Several Thousand Signatures to Referendum Petition.

Uniformed messenger boys yesterday were circulating a new petition among qualified voters seeking names on a petition to hold a referendum on liquor legalization in Atlanta and Fulton county.

Stewart P. Murray, representing a group of Atlanta business men, announced the messenger boys are calling on individual voters from a list supplied by the county ordinary. Thirty-five per cent of the qualified voters must sign a petition before an election can be called.

Cards bearing the petition to the ordinary to call the referendum under Georgia's new liquor law were being delivered to voters by wards and precincts.

Obtain Signatures. The messengers obtained several thousand signatures Thursday and Friday and will continue to circulate the petitions next week, Murray said last night. He urged Atlantans who desire to sign the petition to stay home between 6 and 8 o'clock Monday and Tuesday nights, when a corps of messengers will be at work.

This development came as Upson, fifth Georgia county, set an election date for a referendum, and dry leaders continued their assaults on Revenue Commissioner T. Grady Head's order banning all sales of whisky until authorized by elections.

Dr. George C. V. Gibson, pastor of a Columbus church, charged yesterday at a W. C. T. U. meeting that the proposed liquor bill was "unquestionably bought."

He said he "knew that $12,000 was given to three men who voted wet." Bishop W. N. Ainsworth, in Macon, said Head's order "smacks of the same hypocrisy that has always gone with legalization of liquor."

Charges Betrayal. Mrs. Mary Scott Russell, president of the Georgia W. C. T. U., one of the principal speakers, accused the legislature, Governor Rivers and the President of the United States with advocating the liquor traffic and of betraying the people of the country.

Mrs. Harris Armor assailed high officials of the nation and Georgia, who advocates of the liquor traffic and then extended her remarks to include the "men and women who have betrayed their church and their God" by voting for repeal.

It was reported a number of liquor stores were closing in compliance with Head's order.

Meanwhile, the militant sponsored by Murray and the group of businessmen moved onward.

"We urge the qualified voters who want to hold an election on this matter to be sure and sign the cards brought them by the messengers whether they have signed any other petition or not," Murray said.

Only by assembling the names of qualified voters on these cards can Atlanta and Fulton county expect to have any petition certified by the ordinary in a reasonable time.

"The cards were made out from the registration lists of the ordinary by wards and precincts and when they are signed, there is very little checking to be done."

Approximately 17,000 names are needed under the law to call the election in Fulton county, he pointed out.

The messengers delivered the card petitions to qualified voters in the first and third wards Thursday and last night. Their operation will be spread out next week.

Approximately 17,000 names are needed under the law to call the election in Fulton county, he pointed out.

"We are sending the messengers out between 6 and 8 o'clock at night because more people are at home then," Murray asserted. "We hope that qualified voters will want to sign the petitions while messengers are working in their wards. In this way we can get the necessary number of signers within a few days."

Murray's petition is in addition to another petition being circulated in stores and business places. He pointed out that checking the other petition will require far more time than for the cards.

Upon county will vote March 3 on liquor. The ordinary set the date yesterday. Other counties already having set dates are: Baker, February 21; Berrien, March 2; Evans, March 10, and Pierce, March 12.

Ask Head To Wait. A resolution requesting Commissioner Head to take no action in enforcing his order in wet cities was adopted by the executive committee of the Retail Beer, Wine and Liquor Dealers of Georgia yesterday. It pointed out dealers in cities which locally license liquor sales have heavy stocks, representing large investments. Head was asked to wait until local elections before confiscating any stocks.

Dry in Athens fought the effort to obtain an election in Clarke county by promising to publish the names of signers of the petition to call an election.

Jane Withers' Secretary Is Visiting Here

Elizabeth Geisz, Friend of Star, Greets Miss Rainey at Station.

Miss Josephine Rainey, secretary to Atlanta's own Jane Withers, is home in Atlanta "on leave."

When she stepped from the train last night at the Terminal station, one of the first to greet her was little Elizabeth Geisz who, as winner of a trip to Hollywood in the Constitution's recent screen test contest, enjoyed many pleasures with Jane. According to Elizabeth, Miss Rainey told her and Jane "the best stories" while they were being posed together in the film capital.

Personal Tour.
The little Twentieth Century-Fox star has been on a personal appearance tour since January 24, during which time, said Miss Rainey, it has been necessary for policemen in the various cities to protect her from mobs demanding a sight of Jane or her autograph. "But," says the secretary, "Jane is so sweet about it all, and would rather go without a meal any time than disappoint one single little friend to whom her autograph would bring pleasure. She never tires of greeting people who are interested in her."

Visiting Relatives.
Jane and her mother are breaking their journey by a short visit to Mrs. Withers' mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Elbie, in Louisville, Ky., and at the same time Miss Rainey is with her family at 1650 Beecher street, S. W., in Atlanta. She will join the Withers in Cincinnati, from which point they will return to Hollywood in order that Jane may start work on "Merry Mary Anne."

'MUD PUDDLE' JURY ACQUITS STUDENT

Mary K. O'Connor Freed in Nancy Glenn Death.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 18.—(AP) Mary K. O'Connor, physical education student, was freed today of all charges in the death of five-year-old Nancy Glenn.

The state had charged the 19-year-old girl, known as "Tarzan," with murder, manslaughter and involuntary manslaughter. The state claimed Mary struck little Nancy with her hand and left her for dead face down in a mud puddle last Labor Day.

INVESTIGATION INTO DEATH OF SON HINTED BY TROTSKY
Investigation into Death Ordered in Paris.

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 18.—(AP)—Leon Trotsky tonight hinted at a belief that Leon Sedoff, his son who died Wednesday in Paris, was poisoned.

In his first public statement since his son's death, the former Bolshevik leader said the last letter he had received from Sedoff, dated February 4, contained no mention of any illness.

"If we are to admit the possibility of poisoning," his statement said, "then we must remember that the question is not one of ordinary poisoning."

An official investigation was ordered in Paris Thursday into Sedoff's death. Sedoff died after a week's illness and a police surgeon performed an autopsy which said death resulted from intestinal perforations due to peritonitis.

He is Robert Wynne, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Wynne, of 330 Atlantic street. His parents notified police of his disappearance and said he suffered an amnesia attack last spring, disappearing for a day and found later in Grady hospital.

Mrs. Wynne said she feared he might be suffering another attack. No one at the school remembered seeing the boy disappear after the first class, police said. He was riding a bicycle when he left the house. Police said he was 5 feet 6 inches tall, weighed about 134 pounds and had brown hair and blue eyes. He was wearing a blue hat and overcoat.

have refused successfully to call an Austrian plebiscite at this time on Nazification of Austria.

At the end of the day of fast moving diplomatic developments in London, Chamberlain took the unusual step of calling an extraordinary cabinet council on foreign affairs to meet Saturday and consider the whole European situation.

Nazi Commonwealth.
Among the day's outstanding events was a statement in Vienna by Franz von Papen, retiring German ambassador to Austria. Von Papen said the new Austrian lineup with Germany was but the first step toward a German-led "commonwealth of nations in middle Europe." He attended the Sunday conference of Hitler and Schuschnigg, which led to the present situation.

He declared that other similar agreements were expected to follow, especially with the "succession states" carved out of the old Austro-Hungarian empire at the end of the World War.

Von Papen disclosed the important part of the agreement was economic and that Reichsfuehrer Hitler would guarantee Austria's independence in his Reichstag speech Sunday.

In general, he said, Hitler's economic measures in Germany would be duplicated in Austria, tariff preferences would be granted Austria and tourist centers would be increased.

Diplomatic circles heard reports that Italy had agreed to Germany's increased influence in Austria in return for military alliance with Germany. The purpose of ranking Germany army leader was believed to have paved the way for such a treaty.

NAZIS CAN ENTER FATHERLAND FRONT
VIENNA, Feb. 18.—(AP)—Austrian Nazis were informed officially tonight that they might join the Fatherland Front—the country's only recognized political organization and heretofore her chief bulwark against National Socialism.

At the same time the government assured the public that there were no more secrets about what took place in the talks between Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg and Reichsfuehrer Hitler at Berchtesgaden—that everything agreed upon had been disclosed either by word or deed.

Nazis who enter the Fatherland Front must come as individuals and not as members of the Nazi party, a communique stated, warning that if they persist in illegal activities they not only will be punished according to the law, but will be expelled from the country.

The communique said membership in the Fatherland Front would be conditional upon recognition of the Austrian constitution which prohibits political parties, including the National Socialists.

Report that Austria was to be drawn into a German union caused Vienna stock exchange prices to drop today as much as 10 per cent.

Little Business, Inc., proposes to function through separate units in each community, the members of the units banding together to enunciate their own ideas about what should be done to better conditions.

E. W. Cummings, of Princeton, N. J., an agent for a milling concern, who attended the conference of little businessmen at Washington the first week in February, said that within a short time the organization expected to have 200 units in operation. Some of the first ones, he said, will be in West Virginia, Virginia, Ohio, New York, Kentucky, Pennsylvania and Maryland.

Cummings asserted there are 1,700,000 small businessmen in the country who need some organization to speak for them, but membership will be open to farmers, workers and others who hold the same views.

He will pontificate at 10:45 o'clock tomorrow morning at Holy Eucharist, mass, and ordination of candidates to minor orders. At 8 o'clock tomorrow night he will administer confirmation, preaching on "A Liberal Catholic View of Lent," and benediction of the sacrament.

REDFERN SEEKER ILL, TURNS BACK
"We Had a Terrible Time," Chanler Reports.

GEORGETOWN, British Guiana, Feb. 18.—(AP)—William Astor Chanler, member of the Waldeck expedition, appeared here unexpectedly today, ill from exposure and fever.

His condition was not serious, but he was confined to bed under a doctor's orders.

W. M. Green, agent for the expedition, which is searching for the lost Redfern, long-missing American aviator, said Chanler confirmed reports that Dr. Frederick J. Fox, another member of the party, died January 6 from chills.

Green said he did not know just where Chanler turned back, explaining Chanler "had a bad shock and cannot make a statement now." He said the expedition, which had been marooned at Devil's Hole island, deep in the jungle, was continuing its search.

"We had a terrible time," was Chanler's only statement.

KOPALD-QUINN CASE TRIAL DATE IS SET
Two Remaining Defendants Ordered to Court.

Two remaining defendants in the Kopal-Quinn mail fraud and "bucket shop" swindle case have been scheduled to appear before Judge E. Markham Underwood, in federal district court, March 18, it was announced yesterday.

The cases against Anthony L. Novak and Frank Berger, both charged with violation of the mail fraud and securities acts, have been placed at the end of the March term criminal calendar.

District Attorney Lawrence S. Camp announced yesterday that Novak was Atlanta manager of the Kopal-Quinn Company and Berger was the New Orleans branch manager.

Included on the calendar are 64 cases of which number 48 are for violation of the internal revenue laws. One hundred and 18 defendants are named. Criminal court will open March 14.

Walter P. Newman, 41, cashier of the Continental Insurance Company, died last night in a hospital after an illness of two weeks.

A native of Columbus, Ga., he had lived in Atlanta for the last 21 years. He resided at 979 Delaware avenue, S. E.

Surviving are his wife; two daughters, the Misses Martha and Gloria Newman; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Newman; a sister, Miss Dorothy Newman, and two brothers, L. B. and E. T. Newman.

Funeral services will be announced by H. M. Patterson & Son.

Girl Bride's Marriage Annulled in Tennessee
NASHVILLE, Tenn., Feb. 18.—(AP)—The marriage of a 13-year-old girl to Herschel Hodge, 18, was annulled today by Circuit Judge Neil under the "child marriage" act of the 1937 legislature.

Frances Lorelle England, a sixth grade pupil in adjoining Dickson county, and Hodge were married a month ago. Five days after the ceremony, the child's father obtained an injunction restraining Hodge from seeing his bride, who was placed in the custody of the juvenile court.

Hodge said he believed the girl to be 19 when they married and declared he still wanted her to be his wife.

Cornea of Man Replaced by Ape's
MEMPHIS, Tenn., Feb. 18.—(AP)—Dr. Ramon Castroviejo, of New York, reported to the Mid-South Post Graduate Medical Assembly today that a portion of a monkey's eye had been transplanted to a man's eye in experiments seeking to improve impaired human sight.

The operation involved removal of a rhesus monkey's "eye window" or cornea and using it to replace the diseased cornea of a man.

Dr. Castroviejo described the operation as a "very partial success," adding that this "in lay language is to be interpreted as unsuccessful."

PURPLES CARD 12 GRID GAMES FOR THIS FALL

G.M.A., Marist, Elberton and Greenville To Appear on Slate.

By ROY WHITE.
A 12-game schedule, one of the toughest ever attempted by a Boys' High football team, has been announced by Shorty Doyal, athletic director and coach of the Purple eleven.

Commercial High, a bitter city opponent, will again open the program on September 16, with Miami High scheduled to close the card on December 3 at Miami. The Commercial game will be played on Friday night, immediately following Tech High's opener of the prep season here. Boys' High and Tech High alternate each year with the first game of the season and it will be the Smithies' time to open in September.

Columbia and Gaffney, S. C., have been dropped from the 1937 card and G. M. A., Greenville, Marist College and Elberton High have been taken on the schedule.

INTEREST ADDED.
G. M. A. returns to the Purples' card after an absence of several years and should add materially to the local interest and also will aid in determining a city prep champion. G. M. A. has shown much progress under the direction of Coach Bud Harris and the Cadets with their first spring drills in many years are looking forward to a great season next year.

Marist College, recently admitted to the G. I. A. A., also has been given a place on the Purples' 1938 card, further adding to city prep interest and assuring Atlanta fans of more concentrated football action here than ever before. Marist like G. M. A. also is having six weeks of spring drills, and is looking forward to one of its greatest seasons in recent history with the coming of the 1938 campaign.

OLD FOES.
Other teams on the Boys' High schedule include Monroe, Savannah, Lanier, Knoxville, Tech High and Enslley High. Elberton High will make its first appearance here against an Atlanta team and should add interest in state prep football.

The Purples will make three trips, to Knoxville, Tenn., November 11 for an Armistice Day game, to Birmingham on November 23 and to Miami, Fla., on December third.

Boys' High Monday enters its third week of spring practice. Another preliminary drill will be held the last two weeks in August at Red Barron's Mountain City camp in north Georgia and the regular fall practice will begin September 1 at Piedmont park.

All the games will be played both here and away at night. The schedule:
Sept. 16—Commercial here.
Sept. 22—Monroe Aggies here.
Sept. 28—G. M. A. here.
Oct. 7—Savannah here.
Oct. 14—Greenville (pending).
Oct. 20—Lanier High here.
Oct. 28—Marist College here.
Nov. 4—Elberton High here.
Nov. 11—Knoxville in Knoxville.
Nov. 18—Tech High here.
Nov. 23—Enslley High in Birmingham.
Dec. 3—Miami High in Miami.

Downpour Delays New Orleans Meet

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 18.—(AP) Rain, flitting with New Orleans the past three days, broke loose in a downpour today that caused a one-day postponement of the $5,000 Crescent City open golf tournament.

Twenty-three threesomes were wading through the driving rain when tournament officials announced the postponement.

In America, a Journalist Is One Who Carries a Cane

NOCKEBY, Sweden.—(By Mail.)—It is a very good thing indeed that the lady at whose pension we are staying here at Nockeby is such a kind, fine lady. Otherwise the feet, or dogs, of your old friend and correspondent, would be in a very bad way.

You see, there is a journalist here who started off the visit to Stockholm by showing me the barber shop in which Greta Garbo once worked as a lather girl. That is, it was she who rubbed lather on the chins of the customers and the barber then came along and shaved the whiskers.

He also took me to see the department store in which Miss Garbo toiled, following her departure from the barber shop. This was all right and quite interesting, after a fashion, because Miss Garbo is Miss Garbo and a great actress and perhaps she learned more in the barber shop and the department store than she would have anywhere else.

Since that time, however, various acquaintances have been showing me the very shop in which Miss Garbo was a lather girl. I have protested that I have seen the shops. "Oh, that shop? That isn't the one at all." And we are off again.

The journalist took me to the department store. "We are going to the Pub," he said. "That's fine," said my reporter. "Colonel T. L. Huston used to say that the best way to see the sights in a foreign country was to get a seat by the window in some nice, warm pub." "This Pub is a department store," said the journalist. "It is the second largest department store in Stockholm and it is where Miss Garbo used to work."

And it was. It was not a pub, but a department store named "The Pub." The initials of the gentleman who began the business were P. U. B. Well, anyhow, that is not the story. The story is one of appreciation.

A NOTE TO MR. HUGH TROTTI.
The very first day at this pension, the very nice lady said: "So, you are a journalist?"

"No, ma'am, I am sorry. I wish I were. I am just a newspaperman."
"You write for a newspaper?"
"Yes, ma'am."
"Then what can you be but a journalist?"
"Well, you see, in America a journalist is one who carries a cane."

And so, that evening, on returning from a long day out in the country, what should be found under the table where the typewriter rested, but a large pillow. It is a large one, being a yard square, and it is covered with a heavy, hand-woven material.
"That," said the lady, "is for your feet to rest on while you work. I am sure it must be more comfortable."
It is more comfortable. I am surprised that Mr. Hugh Trotti, who is one of my very good friends, should have forgot this little typewriter accessory. I hope he will speak to the Messrs. Kaiser and Findley and say, "Make a note about that cushion, will you? The McGill dogs will be very weary when he returns."

I told the lady, in thanking her, that in all the wide world her guest was the only newspaperman who worked with his feet resting on a large cushion.
"Do you mean," she asked, "that the managers of newspapers do not make their journalists comfortable?"
They are very smart people, the Swedes.
But, at that, there may be no need of the cushion. If all this walking continues, there won't be enough left of the old feet to put on a cushion.

A ROCKNE STORY.
It was curious—that cold morning when the train from Oslo pulled into the station at Stockholm, an old Knute Rockne story popped into my head. It was said that Rockne and Jim Crowley, greatest of the Notre Dame wits on Rockne's teams, were having one of their testing of lances.
"Rock," asked Crowley, "is there anything dumber than a dumb Swede?"
"Yes," flashed back Rockne, the Swede, "there is—a smart Irishman."

One of the great strengths of Rockne was his flashing, keen Continued on Second Sports Page.

P. WANER SIGNS FOR MORE THAN $15,000, BELIEF

Connie Mack Says Harry Kelly Key to A's Pitching Success.

PITTSBURGH, Feb. 18.—(AP) Paul Waner dickered for two hours and half today about the terms of his 1938 contract with the Pittsburgh Pirates, then smilingly scrawled his signature to his 13th major league agreement. Waner's salary was not disclosed, but it is known that he is the highest paid player of the club, probably drawing between $15,000 and $17,500.

The three times National league batting champion, looking lean, and bronze as a penny, said the new pact was entirely satisfactory. In re that mid-winter talk about "cheap faces" on the Pirate payroll, said Benswanger.

"I told him, 'Paul, say anything you want about your contract if it's unsatisfactory, but please let's don't have any more personal fights in the newspapers about cheapness.'"

"He agreed and that's all there was to it."
Waner will return to his Florida home Sunday, then take a train for the training camp at San Bernardino, Cal., early next month.

Mack, A's Vanguard Leave for Camp

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 18.—(AP) With the eagerness of a schoolboy anticipating a holiday, Connie Mack, 75-year-old boss of the Philadelphia Athletics, assembled the first contingent of players tonight for his annual trip southward for spring training.

Mack will head a squad of pitchers and catchers leaving for Lake Charles, La., Saturday afternoon.

Coaches Russell (Lena) Blackburne and Charley Berry will accompany Mack. Players will be Pitchers Ed Smith, Chubby Dean, Renny Gumpert and Bill Kalfass, and Catchers Frank Hayes and Harold Wagner.

Lee (Buck) Ross and Luther Thomas, holdovers from last year's pitching staff, will join the group en route.
Although refusing to predict a pennant for his Athletics, Mack said the "pitching looks good to me. I think it will be much better than last year."

Harry Kelley holds the key to the Athletics' pitching success, Mack believes. "If he can pitch in 1938 style it will not only bolster our position but it will encourage the younger fellows and give extra confidence to the rest of the team. I'm still quite concerned about the infield."
Mack said Earl Brucker will be his first-string catcher this year.

Bill Jurgens Signs '38 Cub Contract.

CHICAGO, Feb. 18.—(AP)—The Cubs' holdout worries ended today when St. Louis' Jurgens signed a contract that was received. Terms were not announced, but Charles Drake, assistant to the president, said Jurgens signed the first contract offered him after refusing it once.

Goofy Gomez Puzzles Yanks.

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—(AP)—Senior Lefty Gomez is tossing curves at his employers, the Yankees, and they are the first to admit that he has them puzzled.
The goofy one's contract has just been received at the head office, unsigned, and, furthermore, unaccompanied by any writing of any kind. It's the first and only "communication" the Yanks have had from their sterling pitcher since before he went to Reno.

"It's got me," Yankee Secretary Ed Barrow confessed. "I'm writing him tonight, asking him if he wants more money, and if so, how much. He must think I'm a mind reader."

Dale Alexander Signs Chattanooga Contract.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Feb. 18.—(AP)—Big Dale Alexander, slugging first baseman, telegraphed the Chattanooga Times tonight he had signed his contract with the Chattanooga Lookouts.
No mention was made of terms. Alexander played with Nashville last year. He has been wintering on his farm at Greenville, Tenn. He was the third Lookout regular to sign.

Johnson Brothers To Rejoin A's, Bees.

TACOMA, Wash., Feb. 18.—(AP) Bob and Roy Johnson, of Tacoma brothers, said today they would rejoin the Philadelphia Athletics and the Boston Bees, respectively, but would not disclose contract details. Each has spent several years in the majors. Both are outfielders.

JIMMY ADAMICK TAKES DECISION

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—(UP) Young Jimmy Adamick, of Detroit, made a successful bow on boxing's "big time" tonight, winning a close 10-round decision over rugged Harry Thomas, of Eagle Bend, Minn., before a slim crowd of 8,000 at Madison Square Garden.

It was a rousing battle, with the brown-haired 23-year-old midwesterner piling up a lead in the early rounds and then displaying a stout heart in fighting off Thomas' desperate last-round rally.
The crowd cheered for a second when the decision was announced and then, as if suddenly remembering the Millionaire's blond's gallant last-round rally, broke out into a chorus of jeers almost before the echoes of the announcement had died down.

According to the United Press score sheet, Adamick won six rounds—the third on a foul—while Thomas captured four. It was a unanimous decision, with Referee Arthur Donovan and Judge Eddie Forbes each giving Adamick seven rounds and Thomas three.
The other judge, George Leonard, voted five rounds to Adamick, four to Thomas and he called one even.

After Nee finished praising the Cracker and button-holing Earl Mann to prospects the Cracker would farm out—Nee wants to have an eye out for players that may be for sale—George Weiss, general manager of the Yankee farm system, was able to get in a few words about players he thinks will help the world champions this summer.

Seminary Cagers Beaten by Athens

Washington Seminary's basketball sextet lost its first game in eight starts last night at the seminary court, bowing to Athens High, 38 to 31. A return game will be played at Athens next Saturday night.

The scoring was close all the way. Seminary took a lead in the first quarter, only to be eight points behind at the half, 22 to 14. Athens led by one point, 26 to 25, at the end of the third quarter, and the Seminary girls went into the lead, 28-26, early in the fourth quarter.
Tucker, Athens forward, topped the scorers with 23 points. Kurtz led Seminary with 16 points.

BROILLARD KAYODE.

BOSTON, Feb. 18.—(AP)—Tiger Jack Fox, 175, of Spokane, Wash., tonight gained a technical knockout over Lou Broillard, 167, of Worcester, former world's middleweight and welterweight champion, in the seventh round of their scheduled 10-round bout before 3,432 fans at the Boston Garden. This was the first knockout credited against Broillard.

TECH TO INVADE ATHENS TONIGHT FOR TOUGH TEST

Georgia Basketeers Determined To Avenge Early Season Defeat.

By JACK TROY.

A chance for the general public to see Georgia Tech's basketball team in action will be presented tonight when the Jackets play the Georgia Bulldogs in a return game at Athens.

Due to limited seating capacity, only students are admitted to Tech's home games. There has been no chance for the followers to see just what the Jackets have on the basketball.

It will be different tonight, however. Woodruff hall at Athens is large enough to accommodate both students and camp followers, and the hall very likely will be jammed to the rafters when the rivals square off on the court.

The Bulldogs are prepared to atone for the drubbing they took in the opener here. Alex McCaskill, sophomore forward, perhaps expresses the team's sentiment when he says:

"Tech has a highly-touted basketball club, but we will take them this time or know the reason why. I believe that they were playing over their heads when we played them in Atlanta. We are ready for them this time, and it will be a different story."

The Jackets won going away in the game played here. But since then the Bulldogs have been playing with only one thought in mind—beat Tech in the return game. In practice this week, the Bulldogs have been finding the range and polishing up on the defense. They wound up practice Thursday, taking yesterday off.

It will be the final game for Coach Frank Johnson, who recently signed as line coach under Harry Mehre, at Ole Miss. The Bulldogs would like to win the last one for Johnson, who was a great player in his own right at Georgia.

The usual starting Bulldog lineup will include McCaskill and Cecil Kelly, at forwards; Captain Jack Farren, at center, and Tom Kennedy and Olin Thompson, at guards.

Tech's lineup embraces Ed Jones and Bill Jordan, forwards; Bo Johnston, center, and Fletcher Sims and Junior Anderson, guards.

If the Jackets win it will be the eighth consecutive victory against two losses. And the Jackets are ready. The return game, which will be called at 8:30 (E. S. T.), promises to be a thriller.

Walker, Cate, Towns Run Tonight

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—(AP)—The indoor track and field circus returns to Madison Square Garden tomorrow night for the New York A. C. games with the athletes primed for their sixth assault on the record book in two weeks.

The meet will bring out all the big names of the year—Glenn Cunningham in the mile, Don Lash in the two-mile, unbeaten Jimmy Herbert in the 500-yard run, Earle Meadows in the pole vault, Ben Johnson in the sprint, Forrest Towns and Allan Tolmich in a renewal of their hurling duel.

Cunningham, enjoying one of his most successful seasons since coming east for the first time in 1933, will have Archie Sam Roman, his New York Curb Exchange teammate, and Gene Venzke, New York A. C. veteran, as his opponents in the Baxter miller. Glenn has won this event three times in five starts.

The burly Kansan has not been beaten at a mile this year. His time of 4:10 in winning the Hunter miller at Boston last week indicates he is ready to take a crack at his own indoor world mark of 4:08.4.

After lowering the 60-yard record to six seconds flat in the Millrose games, Johnson comes back against many of the same rivals, including Perrin Walker, former Georgia Tech star, from the New York A. C.; Marty Glickman, of Syracuse, and Herbert West, of Columbia.

Towns and Tolmich, co-holders of the new 60-yard hurdles record of 7.4, are favored to fight it out in their specialty with Sam Allen, of Bristow, Okla., the chief rival in a field of 16, which includes Vassa Cate, University of Georgia sophomore hurdler, who has defeated Towns in practice.

Mother Breaks Down in Court At Frankel Child Neglect Hearing

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—(AP)—The mother of 12-year-old Howard Frankel was led out of children's court in Brooklyn today after she broke into screams at a hearing to determine if the boy was a neglected child.

Attorney Carabba had asked a detective from the missing persons bureau if Howard rushed into his mother's arms when she called for him after he ran away.

Mrs. Rose Frankel, the mother, shouted from the rear of the courtroom:

"No, no, because he was away from me for five years. If you want to know why, I'll tell you why."

She was quieted by friends and led, sobbing, from the courtroom. Judge O'Brien continued the hearing until next Friday after counsel for Mrs. Frankel challenged his jurisdiction.

Mrs. Frankel obtained custody of the boy—who ran away four times afterward because he wanted to return to his father's home in Linden, N. J.—through order of a New Jersey advisory master.

The present action resulted from a complaint by Peter Cooper, the boy's great-uncle, that he was a neglected child, and his mother incompetent to care for him.

STATE INCOME TAX TOTALS $1,564,741

Auditor Reveals Collections for Seven Months Ending
January 31.

Georgia collected $1,564,741 in income taxes during seven months ending January 31, an audit of the income tax division of the revenue department revealed yesterday.

State Auditor Zach Arnold also released audits of the University of Georgia at Athens and of the Georgia Experiment station at Griffin.

All were prepared by former state auditor Tom Wilson, whom Arnold succeeded February 11.

The university audit disclosed the institution with a cash balance of $149,781.64, and total current assets of $177,171.66. Liabilities were listed as $82,770.10, and the current surplus as $94,401.56. The audit covered the ten-month period ending June 30, 1937.

Total trust funds of the university amounted to $110,506.52, including $92,036.82 in student loan funds.

Total income of the university during the period was $957,039.25, while total expenditures were listed at $957,934.01.

The audit of the income tax division covered the period from July 1, 1937 to January 31, 1938.

It showed a total of $1,564,741.79 in income taxes collected during the seven months, and refunds amounting to $22,993.22, or a net total of $1,541,748.57.

The department showed a surplus at the end of January of $21,257.43. Transfers to the state treasury amounted to $1,500,000, leaving a cash balance of $64,741.79.

The experiment station audit, covering a ten-month period ending June 30, 1937, showed total assets as $5,943.60 and liabilities as $399.27, leaving available for operation $5,544.33.

adding that he had thrown out those that he couldn't understand and kept those that he could. The latter were on display upon an easel standing beside his chair. He took a school teacher's pointer and explained them to the correspondents.

One of the charts compared the cost of living with farm income and the income of city workers. For the 1930 to 1937 period, it showed living costs dropping a little more than 20 per cent, non-farm income dropping 40 per cent and farm income some 65 per cent. All the lines came together again in early 1937, and separated when the present business recession set in.

Agricultural Prices.
The prices of farm commodities were displayed on a third chart, which showed the financial returns from cotton, wheat, corn and hogs all fluctuating widely and falling or rising together.

A fourth chart dealt with the cost of building materials. It showed cement, structural steel, plaster and strip shingles to be at levels well above those of 1929 and wall board and house paint to be but slightly below. Long straight lines were conspicuous as compared with the curves and zigzags of other commodities.

Mr. Roosevelt called the chart significant because it represented a break-down of the cost of the raw materials of a single industry. It showed, he said, that pretty important materials cost almost as much as, or far more than, they did in 1929.

COURT AGAIN TO TRY
PULLEY THEFT CASE

Question of Chickens' Sex
Back in Danielsville.

The case of Mose Smith and the questionable sex of two allegedly stolen chickens went back to the city court of Danielsville yesterday after a ruling by the supreme court and an assist decision by the court of appeals.

The court of appeals, acting on the supreme court's ruling on the question certified to it by the lower court, reversed the decision of Judge J. T. Murray, of the city court of Danielsville, in convicting Smith, and ordered a new trial.

Mose, charged with simple larceny, was accused of stealing from J. E. Benton, "one white Plymouth Rock pullet . . . and one dark-barred Plymouth Rock pullet" valued at 50 cents each. On trial, the prosecutor testified "one of the chickens was a Dominique and the other was a white-barred Rock."

The supreme court, in a ruling last month, held the charge was "not supported by proof of larceny of two chickens . . . where there was no proof of sex," and held there was such variance between allegations and proof as to render Smith's conviction illegal. The court of appeals ordered a new trial.

The drive ends today.

Statement of Roosevelt Advisors Requesting Balance in U. S. Prices

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—(AP)—The text of the statement of administrative price policy read by President Roosevelt to his press conference today:

This administration has from the beginning pursued a policy designed to promote full employment of our human and material resources. That continues to be our policy. The productive power of our workers and our resources, if fully utilized, can provide and maintain a national income far above any levels we have yet reached.

An important factor that determines whether we shall succeed or be blocked in our endeavor to attain full employment and a high level of income is the behavior of prices. In this connection careful attention must be given to: (1) The relations of the prices of various groups of commodities to each other; (2) the relations between commodity price levels and the levels of debt burdens and costs; (3) the direction and rate of movement of the general price level. To further its broad objective the administration has, therefore, in its agricultural, industrial and monetary programs necessarily been concerned both with the relation of the prices of groups of specific commodities to each other and with the movement of the general price level.

MEASURES EMPLOYED MUST FIT NEEDS
The measures employed at any given time to further this policy must fit the needs of that time. A year ago there was ground for concern that a too rapid rise in the prices of some commodities was encouraging a speculative boom. During the past six months, on the other hand, the general price level and industrial activity have been declining. Government policy must be directed to reversing this deflationary trend.

This does not mean that all prices should advance, nor that the rise should be rapid. Prices of different groups of products must be brought into balanced relations to one another. Some prices and some costs are still too high to promote that balanced relationship between prices that is necessary for sustained recovery. Continued high prices of many of the commodities not subject to highly competitive market forces intensifies the downward pressure on all other prices. Those industries that have maintained prices and curtailed output should seek the restoration of profits through increased rather than through restricted output.

DANGER IS CITED IN CURTAILED SALES
The prices of some items are still at the highest levels reached in 1937; some are even higher than in 1929. When high prices sharply curtail sales there is real danger. This is shown by our recent experience with housing. A year ago there was a serious shortage. We had unused productive resources ample to overcome the shortage. Yet all the major elements in housing costs advanced so sharply by the spring of 1937 as to kill a promising expansion of activity in an industry whose restoration is vital to continued recovery.

For industries, such as agriculture, that operate at a high level of capacity even when business activity is at low levels, the restoration of profits must come primarily through higher prices. Higher prices in such industries and increased output in other industries will, by increasing profits, encourage new investment in replacement and expansion of equipment. This is necessary to full recovery.

BALANCED STRUCTURE TO AID FAMILIES
The average family will benefit from the business recovery which a balanced price structure will foster. Increased employment and more continuous income should much more than offset any increase in the cost of living. Recently wholesale prices have declined markedly, yet that decline has been reflected in the cost of living only to a very slight degree. A moderate rise in wholesale prices at this time should only slightly affect living costs. Incomes of most families will increase while the cost of what the housewife buys should show little change. The average family will enjoy a higher standard of living.

It is clear that in the present situation a moderate rise in the general price level is desirable, and that this rise need not and should not extend to all prices. The rise should take place in and must be mainly confined to classes of commodities whose prices are too low. These include most of those raw materials and finished products which are produced and sold under highly competitive conditions. Such rise must not be so sharp or continue so long as to lead to a repetition of the unhealthy speculative conditions of a year ago. That sharp rise in prices encouraged speculative inventory buying which, combined with the decline in housing construction, laid much of the ground for the present recession. We must do everything we can to prevent this from happening again.

POLICY OF ABUNDANCE IS AIM OF PROGRAM
Our program seeks a balanced system of prices such as will promote a balanced expansion in production. Our goal is a constantly increasing national income through increasing production and employment. This is the way to increase the real income of consumers.

This is not a policy of restriction; it is a policy of abundance. Our agricultural, industrial, housing and monetary programs have been and will be directed toward this end.

REV. A. J. KISSLING WILL PREACH HERE

To Be Heard Tomorrow at Westminster Church.

Recipient of a call to take over the pastorate of Westminster Presbyterian church, the Rev. Albert Jacob Kissling of Jacksonville, Fla., will be in Atlanta tomorrow to preach at morning and night services before announcing whether he will accept.

Westminster Presbyterian church has been without a pastor since October 1, when the Rev. Peter Marshall accepted a call to the New York Avenue Presbyterian church in Washington, D. C.

Dr. Kissling is pastor of the Riverside Presbyterian church in Jacksonville, where he has been since 1932. Prior to that he was pastor of the Wardie Kirk, Edinburgh, Scotland.

A native of Nashville, Tenn., Dr. Kissling received his bachelor of arts degree at Westminster College, Fulton, Mo., in 1925, graduating from the Union Theological Seminary, Richmond, Va., in 1929.

He took graduate work in philosophy and theology at the University of Berlin and the University of Tubingen in Germany and the University of Edinburgh. From 1921 until 1931 he held the Thomas Cary Johnson fellowship at Union Seminary.

Will Preach Tomorrow

REV. A. J. KISSLING.

DIES IN 106TH YEAR.

NASSAU, Bahamas, Feb. 18.—(AP)—Ma Robinson, who claimed to be 105 years old and was the last of the former slaves in the Bahamas, died today.

'Backseaters' Pick Subjects For Minister

When the Rev. W. A. Duncan, pastor of the First Baptist church, East Point, issued a call for "backseat drivers" his congregation responded wholeheartedly.

With members of the congregation acting as "kibitzers" Dr. Duncan preaches each Sunday on subjects they pick out for him. It's all working out very nicely, Dr. Duncan says, adding he feels the listeners get a "break" when they choose the subjects.

He will preach tomorrow morning on "Can a Man Be Saved Today and Lost Tomorrow?" and tomorrow night on "The Sin Against the Holy Ghost." Dr. Duncan balances up everything by taking morning subjects suggested by the older members of the congregation and night subjects from the youngsters.

S.I.S.P. Club Holds 34th Annual Reunion At Banquet Tonight

Gathering for its thirty-fourth annual reunion this evening at 6:30 o'clock at the Georgian Terrace hotel, the S. I. S. P. Club of the Y. W. C. A., will hear Miss Luella F. Norwood, noted traveler and leader in the educational field, who will give an account of some of her most interesting experiences and observations. Musical features by Coleman Kimbro, baritone, of St. Luke's choir, and Julian F. Barfield, talented pianist, will be given.

Organized in 1903 to perpetuate the good times enjoyed in the first Y. W. C. A. "class in calisthenics" the club has met continuously since and for 34 years has invited former members and friends to a reunion celebration on February 19. There are nine charter members at present and the membership includes outstanding business and professional women of Atlanta as well as those who have moved to other cities.

The S. I. S. P. Club, which typifies spiritual, intellectual, social and physical growth fostered by Y programs, has been a stalwart force in the building of the Atlanta Association and its members have always co-operated wholeheartedly in every major undertaking. Its present officers are Miss May McGinty, president; Miss Mamie Williams, vice president; Miss Mabel Robson, treasurer; Miss Lottie Loftis, recording secretary, and Miss Mary Phelps, corresponding secretary.

Mrs. Ora Carroll is program chairman for the 1938 banquet and Miss McGinty will preside. Various Y. W. C. A. leaders and others will be guests and telegrams and messages will be read from former members who live in other cities.

The 18 members who met regularly at the Y every Tuesday evening are Misses Elsie Bowers, Willie Chaffin, Caroline Cooper, Alice Gies, Virginia Harrison, Lora Morehead, May McGinty, Jessie Williams, Katherine Parker, Lena May Parks, Mary Phelps, Rosa Rauscher, Mabel Robson, Genevieve Saunders, Florence Williams, Mamie Williams, Olivia Bray, Cria E. Carroll, Aline Weekley.

Founders' Day Issue Contains Article From The Constitution

The Atlanta Constitution was signally honored in the recent publication of "Through the Years," by the National Congress of Parents and Teachers, in that an article from The Constitution, published on February 5, 1897, telling of plans for the convening of the first National Congress of Mothers, was the only article that was reproduced from a southern newspaper.

The interesting book, which was compiled from clippings in the scrapbook of Mrs. David O. Mears, is published as an appreciation of Mrs. Mears, the originator of Founders' Day, which is annually observed during February by each P.-T. A. that is a member of the national congress. Mrs. Mears was a devoted friend of Mrs. Alice Birney, who with Mrs. Phoebe Hearst founded the first Mothers' Congress. This later grew into the great national organization that has welded parents and teachers together in a movement that has resulted in better schools and better school children.

The article reproduced from The Constitution was written by a special correspondent from Washington and tells of plans for the first National Congress of Mothers, held at the Arlington hotel in Washington on February 17, 1897. It tells of the early efforts by Mrs. Birney and Mrs. Hearst toward banding together the mothers of America and gives the name of many prominent women of that time who interested themselves in the remarkable move that interests thousands of women in the United States.

Welfare Department To Aid in Fight.

The welfare department of the Fifth District Federation met Thursday with Mrs. E. Stewart, chairman, presiding, assisted by Mrs. Charles S. Smith, chairman of public health. The meeting was held for the purpose of formulating plans to take care of active venereal disease cases in this vicinity.

Miss Annie Bess Phoebe, superintendent of nurses at Grady hospital, discussed the facilities offered, at the present time, for treatment of the diseases. A telegram was read from the Georgia Tech Woman's Club, pledging support. Mrs. Mildred Seydell wrote a letter, expressing hopes that something could be done in the premises.

Dr. Ralph E. Wager, of Emory University, chairman of the Georgia Social Hygiene Council, was the speaker. He asked the club women to support senate bill 3290, federal funds to the aid of the states in stamping out these diseases. Mrs. Smith requests that all member clubs of the Fifth District Federation send a telegram or write a letter immediately to senators and congressmen asking their support of these bills.

Brookhaven News.

Mrs. Ella West, of Lackey, Ky., is visiting Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Adams, of Brookhaven.

Miss Margaret Wallace is visiting relatives in Cumming.

Mrs. Grove Gives Luncheon Honoring Miss Edwina Eustis

Miss Edwina Eustis, noted opera and concert singer, who has been the feted guest of Mrs. Howard Smith this week at her home on Rivers road, was central figure at the luncheon at which Mrs. Lon W. Grove was hostess yesterday at her home on Habersham road.

The exquisitely appointed luncheon table held in the center an attractive arrangement of brilliantly tinted fruits. Covers were placed for Miss Eustis, Mrs. Howard Smith, Mrs. C. T. Pottinger, Mrs. J. O. H. Sanders and her guest, Miss Lucile Bowden, of New York; Mrs. Paul Seydel, Mrs. Alex King Jr. and the hostess, Mrs. Grove.

Miss Eustis left on the midnight plane last evening to return to New York, after cancelling her plans to go to Louisville, Ky., where she was scheduled to sing in the wedding of Miss Leelia Reynolds to Douglas Owen which takes place this evening. One of the best known contraltos in this country, Miss Eustis has many demands made on her time and talent.

Mrs. Lee Edwards entertained at luncheon on Wednesday at her home on Woodward way in compliment to Miss Eustis, and the same day her hostess, Mrs. Smith, invited 40 friends to meet her at tea.

MEN LOVE GIRLS WITH PEP

If you are peppy and full of fun, men will love you to dance and parties. BUT, if you are cross, ill-humored and slow, men won't like you. Men don't like "quiet" girls.

For three generations one woman has told another how to get a "peppy" glow. With Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, it helps Nature tone up the system, thus insuring the best health and the most radiant and famous Pinkham's Compound today. IT'S THE ONLY "PEPPY" DRUG—more than a million women have written letters reporting benefit. Why not try LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND?

MY DAY

By Eleanor Roosevelt

ITHACA, N. Y., Thursday.—As usual, there are so many things I want to tell you about that I am at a loss to know where to begin. I was deeply interested yesterday in Keuka College. It is a small college which takes approximately 200 girls. For that very reason, the girl who might not be able to obtain anything of value from a big college, may receive a real education here and develop in a way which might be out of the question if she did not have individual attention.

The tuition and board are lower than in many colleges, opportunities are made for work, and they have a few scholarships. They draw largely from the state of New York and from the smaller towns, villages and rural districts. I talked for a time with the heads of the various college organizations. I was interested to find one bright-looking girl, who edits the college publication, had been a victim of infantile paralysis and was still on crutches. She seemed entirely independent, however, and I learned she had earned a large part of her college expenses by work in the bookshop.

Because the college is small, it can follow up its girls into whatever occupations they enter and bring them back to the college for discussion and advice. Dr. Miller, head of the college, came here from Bucknell and is a most interesting person whose influence on the girls is excellent. The dean, Miss Chloe Owens, is a woman who has done so many interesting things that I imagine she can fire the imagination of almost any youngster.

I was back at Cornell in the afternoon and interested in going the round of all the exhibits. I think this is my eleventh yearly visit, and still there is always something new to see.

Mr. Langdon, of Elmira, has given the college a collection of really beautiful dresses which belonged to his mother in the gay nineties. Next, we visited two kitchens: a modern kitchen arranged to bring out a blue color scheme, and a contrasting old-fashioned kitchen—coal stove, oil lamps, and pump at the sink, but still made attractive by the yellow color scheme used in walls, curtains and rugs.

There is an international exhibit here this year with posters and publications from various countries. Also, a book fair with exhibits of printing from the early days up to modern times, with lectures of old books, and two rooms of modern books to browse in. One was for the older people and one for children.

I confess the children's room is always the most fascinating to me. The books in the other room were extremely well chosen and calculated to be most valuable to the group of people who visit Cornell during this week. Somewhere around 20,000 will have been here before the week comes to an end.

PLEASANT HOMES

By ELIZABETH M'RAE BOYKIN

So flowery it is almost fragrant was the chintz for the guest room.

Our Nellie is a lady, but she's blonde and very much alive. Right now she's thrilled to pieces over what she's been doing with her house—using mostly imagination and energy.

Don't Gasp.

Take that back hall, for instance. An insipid looking spot it was, mostly doors with just one decent wall space. Nellie papered it with silver paper (it didn't take so much because of the small amount of wall space, so she could afford metallic paper even at the higher per-roll figure). Then she painted the woodwork—don't gasp—brilliant Chinese red. And did that nondescript little room sit up and take notice! It really acquired personality and poise all in the same breath and was literally "furnished" with color, which was important since there really wasn't much space for furniture.

Of course, this room required a bit of living up to as far as the adjoining rooms were concerned. But Nellie was prepared for that. Her bedroom in powder blues and yellow flowered chintz got a pair of little footstools covered in bright red.

Splashes of Flowers.

The guest room in pale greens and greys got the loveliest cretonne, yards and yards of it so flowered that it really seemed fragrant. And the ground color of this cretonne was white with splashy red flowers for its design.

The kitchen repeated red in the checked curtains that hung at the windows and in the linoleum on the floor.

So Nellie's little hall is vindicated for its boldness. And it certainly adds zest to the very place most houses fall down—in the hall that can so easily become a catch-all.

Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Miss Boykin, care The Atlanta Constitution, for our illustrated bulletin "How to Hang Wall Paper."

Chi Omega Alumnae Hold Stunt Night.

A buffet supper followed by "stunt night" and a "round-table" for the pledges was given by the executive board of the Atlanta Chi Omega Alumnae Association Thursday for active members and the pledges of Sigma Gamma Chapter of Oglethorpe University at the home of Miss Medora Fitts, pledge captain, 1807 Peachtree road.

Hostesses included the alumnae officers, Miss Aline Fraser, president; Mrs. L. J. Loebe, vice president; Miss Ann Redding, secretary; Miss Dora Ewing, treasurer; Miss "Gene" Patterson, "stunt" editor, and the other members of the executive board, composed of the various groups and committees. Also present were the active chapter advisors, including Misses Claire Bullock, Louise Thacker, Carol Moore, Martha Carmichael, Linda Cox, Margaret Chesire, Jane Cline, Margaret Loebe, Elizabeth Cline, Henrietta Gunn and Mesdames Sidney Jewett, Lloyd Davis, Judson Bowen, W. D. Brewer, Jr., Mrs. Paul Gregory and Mrs. Richard P. Diekmann.

Members of the active chapter present were Misses Elinor Ivey, Medora Fitts, Alice Polak, Marion Oliver, Lillian Brown and Lillian Klein. The "pledges" are Misses Charlotte Ripley, Martha Dunwood, Clarabelle Huffman, Jean Holmes, Anna McConaghey and Virginia Brooks.

Rabun Gap Guild.

The executive board of the Rabun Gap-Nacoochee Junior Guild met with Mrs. Henry Bowden recently. An interesting spring program, including a skating party, was discussed. Mesdames Henry Bowden, Bradford McFadden, James Frazier, Carol Jones, Floyd Davis and Miss Claire Bullock were present.

NO. 1493.

You will include at least one of these dresses in your new spring wardrobe, for this Gibson girl revival is destined for wide popularity throughout the summer. Eleanor Whitney, pretty Paramount star wears this vivacious, lively dress for you in photograph above. You can make one exactly like it with the aid of Barbara Bell pattern No. 1493. For immediate wear, choose a thin wool for the skirt and a smart taffeta for the blouse. The skirt is pleated back and front with pleats stitched down to give a smooth hipline and animated flare at the hem.

Barbara Bell pattern No. 1493 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20. Corresponding bust measurements 30, 32, 34, 36 and 38. Size 14 (32) requires 2 1/8 yards of 34-inch material for the skirt and 1 7/8 yards of 39-inch material for the blouse.

Pattern No. 1493 can be purchased for 15 cents. Please remit in coins, giving your name, address, pattern number and size. Do not send stamps.

Which reminds me—Hedy (Evelyn) Lamarr and Greer Garson are not speaking, and Hedy still doesn't know how it happened. HEALTH TALKS

By DR. WILLIAM BRADY

SUN SHINES THROUGH YOUR SKIN.

For 20 years or more readers have been assuring me that I am in error when I assert that nothing is absorbed through the unbroken skin, for their physicians or some physicians have told them that when mercury ointment is carefully rubbed into the clean skin it is absorbed, as can be proved by finding mercury in the urine shortly afterward.

I'd hate to have a doctor of that type of mind on the jury if I were on trial for my life and circumstantial evidence were offered against me.

In my mallow days in practice I prescribed inunctions of mercury ointment in many cases. Never had any doctor and have none now that the patient who receives an inunction, that is, an application of mercury ointment to the skin with considerable rubbing, absorbs some of the mercury. But every intelligent physician knows perfectly well, if he isn't under subsidy, that the mercury such a patient absorbs is absorbed by inhalation of the volatilized mercury—the mercury volatilized by the warmth of the body and by friction. Moreover every intelligent physician knows that, in order to obtain an appreciable effect from mercury so administered, the patient must remain unwashed for at least a few days and nights, for if the ointment is washed away shortly after the inunction is given the patient will have no apparent effect. It is precisely for this reason that administration of mercury by inunction is now practically obsolete. The method is too dirty and too crude or uncertain to justify its use today.

Except an amazingly large parcel of nostrums, which have to promise magic in order to catch the sucker trade, nothing has been found to penetrate the unbroken skin, and no one pretends to believe anything is absorbed by the unbroken skin unless he expects to be well paid for it.

Sunshine, however, does get through your skin if you give it a fair chance. At least the rays of direct sunshine penetrate far enough into the skin to produce a chemical effect upon a fat-like substance known as ergosterol which is normally present in the skin. Ultraviolet rays of sunshine of short wave length convert this ergosterol in the skin into vitamin D, which is vitamin D, and the vitamin D so produced is carried by the blood to all parts of the body where it is needed.

Sunlight is richest in the precious ultraviolet rays in midsummer, nearest the equator, at greatest altitude where the atmosphere is clearest from fog, cloud, dust or smoke, any of which screens out or prevents more or less of the ultraviolet from reaching the earth.

Sunlight or skyshine is richest in ultraviolet at or near the non-day when the sun is highest overhead and the rays most nearly direct; poorest in the early forenoon or late afternoon when the sun is nearer the horizon and the rays more oblique.

Ultraviolet rays are excluded by ordinary window glass almost entirely. Happily there is now available at reasonable cost a special kind of glass which transmits the invisible ultraviolet rays of sunlight or skylight (indirect sunshine) and is much used in the solarium or sunbath room in hospitals, sanatoria and private homes where daily sunbaths are desired even when the weather outside is too cold for exposure.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Fine Mouth Wash.

Canker sores and sores (possibly Vincent's angina or trench mouth) disappear like magic when I use the mouthwash you kindly suggested—teaspoonful of sodium perborate powder in half glassful warm water, and apply directly to sores for a few minutes. The pure perborate in a paste made by moistening a bit with water. I certainly thank you for this suggestion. (C. E.)

Answer—It is a good remedy for the purpose, also for occasional use as tooth powder, if you brush your teeth. I never brush mine because I hope to keep them until I'm through with them. I think the preservation of the teeth depends wholly upon (a) nutrition and (b) the regular care of the teeth by one's dentist.

Wheel Chair Stage.

For about two years have been confined to wheel chair with hardened arteries. (N. C. R.)

Answer—I admit I'm good, but when the arteries are as bad as that I'd rather leave you to your own doctor's care. (Copyright, 1938, for The Constitution.)

Mr. and Mrs. Boyd Observe Anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. George R. Boyd kept open house at their home, 1720 South Gordon street, Wednesday, the occasion celebrating their tenth wedding anniversary. Receiving with Mr. and Mrs. Boyd were Mrs. Ruby Dixon, Mrs. Charles Parr, Miss Mary Wells, Mrs. Dora B. Hamilton and Raleigh Crawford.

The home was decorated with many flowers received by the couple. The dining table was covered with a lace cover, and centered with white carnations and ferns.

Mrs. Boyd was assisted in entertaining by Mesdames M. E. Cobb, George Campbell, L. G. Winters, O. B. Boyd and W. D. Morris.

Mrs. Boyd's sisters, Mrs. Howard Overby, of Columbus; Mrs. G. N. Rainey, of Columbus; Mrs. Pierce Hopkins, of Palmetto, were visitors present. Mrs. Andy Johnson kept the guest book in which the names of more than 75 friends were registered.

Prominent Georgians, Alumni of Young Harris, Dine

Part of the group of prominent Georgians, all alumni and former students of Young Harris College, who attended a get-together dinner last night at the Atlanta Woman's Club, is shown above. Seated, from left to right, are Mrs. Alva G. Maxwell, chairman of arrangements; Governor Rivers and Mrs. J. N. McEachern. Standing are Dr. T. J. Lance, left, president of Young Harris College, and Dr. Z. V. Johnson, president of the state alumni of the college. Governor Rivers, one of the best-known graduates of the institution, was principal speaker at the dinner.

Phi Alpha Kappas Honor Rushees.

The Beta Chapter of the Phi Alpha Kappa sorority entertained their rushees recently with a series of social affairs, including a treasure hunt and wicker roast at the home of Miss Mary Alice Lane, 2109 Peachtree road; a dance at West End Golf Club, and a tea at the home of the president, Miss Ruth Austin, on Peachtree road.

Officers of the sorority are Miss Austin, president; Misses Norwood Osborn, vice president; Ann Keen, secretary; Emily Langford, treasurer; June Hopkins, scribe; Anna May Crawley, corresponding secretary, and Charlotte Gingrich, sergeant at arms.

Your Figure, Madame

By IDA JEAN KAIN.

ROLL OFF THAT EXCESS HIP-LINE IF YOU WOULD LOOK TRIM IN YOUR SUIT.

It's to be another suit spring with hip-length coats and fitted waistlines. The tailored simplicity of these smart suits is all to the good if you have a slim waist with hips in proportion.

Bulging hips and a roving waist-

Roll off the bulges from outer thigh and derriere.

line, however, were never designed for the 1938 spring styles and it takes emergency measure to perform miracles within 30 days. Of all the exercises, the most effective are those of the rolling type, which massage hips, incorporated, and at the same time twist and stretch the waist, as in the following:

Position: Sitting on floor, knees wide apart and soles of feet together, hands braced on floor at sides.

Movement: Rock from right to left, resting first the right thigh, then buttocks, then the left thigh flat on the floor. Continue for 25 counts, holding the feet in the same position but rocking vigorously. This exercise will roll off all the bulges along the outer thigh and across the derriere.

Position: Sitting on floor, knees bent, feet drawn up close to the body and legs together.

Movement: Holding the legs together, roll over on the side of one thigh, then roll back so that the other thigh is resting on the floor. Roll ten, later 20 times. This roll smooths out the pin cushions of fat at the sides of the thighs.

Here is a pippin for slimming the waistline!

Position: Lying flat on back on floor, arms outstretched on the floor above head, knees flexed and feet flat on floor.

Movement: Keeping the small of the back on the floor and the shoulders relaxed, roll the hips from the waist to bring the side of first one leg down and then the other down on the floor.

Position: Lying on floor, arms outstretched on floor above head, legs extended downward and held together. Lie on the back.

Movement: Keeping the upper part of the body relaxed and flat on the floor, twist at the waist and roll the lower part of the body from side to side. Hold the feet together.

Rolling wears away hip and thigh bulges like nothing else will and it improves these measurements more rapidly than any other type of exercise. This is only a sample set, send for the leaflet "Rolling Exercises" and unravel the rest.

By CAROLINE CHATFIELD.
Problems of general interest submitted by readers will be discussed in this column. Correspondence invited. Your name held in confidence. Write Miss Chatfield, care The Atlanta Constitution.

She's a woman in her upper sixties who's had her share of troubles in this life, more than average perhaps. But she's kept her sense of honor and her wholesome love of life. She's one of those comfortable sort you like to be with when you're in low spirits. She was saying the other day that we have no choice in the matter of enduring what life hands us; we have to take it, but the thing that counts is how we behave while we are enduring and the frame of mind we are in when we come out of the gloom.

Said she: "We lost our first baby and I thought I was being brave because I wasn't rebellious. As I look back on that year I don't see why my husband and friends didn't desert me because I went in deep mourning, dropped out of everything I had been a part of, shut myself into grief and didn't want to be comforted."

"I was the only person that had ever been so bereaved. I was a martyr and looked dressed and acted the part. It didn't occur to me that I owed anybody anything, or that I had any obligation to go on with life. Not until our second child was born did I become a normal human being."

"Years later when I lost my husband and my home, I didn't stage another sit-down strike. I was ready for the compromise with life and although I knew I must get the bad end of the bargain, I resolved to make the best of it. You see, I had learned that whatever sorrows and disappointments we may have, life is sweet, if we aren't bitter."

People say to me "You must be terribly lonely living by yourself." Yes, I am lonely and I have fits of the blues when I feel desperately sorry for myself—but they pass. I manage to see a good deal of my friends, have my church work, belong to a club or two and I still enjoy a cup of tea spiced with a juicy bit of gossip and I love to read a good book.

INSTALLMENT XXXIII

"I'd like that better than anything I can think of," Terry's face brightened. Later, in Caradad's one big chair with his pipe drawing satisfactorily, Terry looked up at his hostess, who had insisted on tucking a cushion behind his back. "I almost expect to see you bringing out my slippers next, Dad," he said.

"You're drawing on your imagination," she returned lightly. "Maybe. But you are . . . restful." With an impulsive gesture, he reached out and took her hand. "Dad, what you did for me is still very wonderful . . . no matter what. But aside from that, I've missed an awful lot by letting you get away from me for so long. Things might have been different . . . for me."

Caradad's heart gave a curious throb at the touch of his hand. She stood motionless until his fingers loosened their hold and his hand fell away from hers.

"Now, you know I was tired to-night," he observed almost gruffly. "Tired enough to be—sappy."

Gerta was profuse in her expressions of delight at the invitation and appeared at the Rushmore looking particularly attractive in her riding things. "Very Piping Rock," Terry observed with a grin. Severance insisted upon his three guests occupying the deep rear seat of the touring car, while he accompanied his tall figure to one of the folding seats. He sat sidewise, with one arm over the back of his chair, so that he could converse easily with the others. He was more loquacious than usual, Caradad thought. He directed many of his remarks to Gerta and rewarded him with flattering attention to his every word.

They were less than a mile from the lane leading in to the farmhouse when a brown coupe roared past the long touring car, so close that Severance's chauffeur swerved quickly to the side of the road. Severance looked sharply at the speeding stranger, then sent a swift, searching glance down the road behind. He jerked forward, thrust his head between the two liveried men on the front seat. His voice was tense, pitched too low for his guests to overhear.

"Jerry! Watch that car behind. If he tries to crowd you, don't let him. Step on it and never mind the lane."

His right hand made a swift motion in the direction of a door pocket.

"Tom—that coupe in front. If it stops, see that nobody gets out. Hold where you are, Jerry."

Terry and Gerta chanced to be talking together and Caradad was the only one in the rear seat to sense that something was amiss. She sat perfectly still, but her heart pounded strangely when she saw Severance slip a heavy automatic from under the pocket flap and hide it in his lap. His eyes were fixed intently on the rear-view mirror.

A slight scream from Gerta broke the silence. The heavy sedan was forging past and deliberately cutting in on Jerry. Severance lifted himself from his seat, steadying himself with his left hand. His right, holding the gun, came into view. Tom, the footman, swung about in his place. He, too, had a gun in his hand.

It was all over in an instant. Another hysterical scream from Gerta was drowned by a clash of fenders striking and grinding. Caradad had a confused vision of men's faces peering from the sedan. She felt the touring car jerk uncertainly and saw their chauffeur tugging at the wheel savagely, then slow his machine as the sedan shot ahead.

"The coupe is picking up, sir," the footman reported to Severance, with a touch of fingers to his cap.

"They're both on their way," his employer observed. "That was very good, Jerry. Back up as far as the gate. Everything is clear behind you."

"Yes, sir. Thank you, sir," "I'm sorry," Severance apologized, then laughed when he saw the big brown eyes of the girl in the back seat gravely searching his. "Constabulary duties, Miss Caradad. That's all."

"I never was so frightened in my life!" Gerta exclaimed, leaning back limply. "I was sure that dreadful man was going to hit us. Do you suppose he was drunk?"

It must be that Gerta had not noticed the display of guns in her night, Caradad thought.

"Must have been," Terry decided. "We're lucky they didn't hook into us."

He was frowning as he lighted a cigarette. Caradad felt a little thrill of pride when he noticed how perfectly steady his hands were. He was as cool as Severance, yet he must have known that other car had tried to force them off the road. That the coupe had something to do with it. She wanted very much to know what it was all about, but would ask no questions now on Gerta's account.

The latter was still shaken from her experience when they reached the farmhouse, although she insisted that she was quite all right and ready to ride.

Terry found his opportunity to question his host alone while Lief Sorenson was saddling and bringing the horses from the stables.

"Stick-up!" he suggested quietly. "Hardly," Severance frowned as he crowded fresh tobacco into the bowl of his briar. "I think, though, we'd best try to make Miss Vardell believe it was. She has plenty of nerve . . . don't think that Mrs. Greenway realized there was anything more to it than a near road smash."

"Those birds were after something," Terry insisted. "Tough-looking mugs, from what I saw. They meant business. Lucky you were heeled. Do you always go that way?"

"Mostly. I keep late hours on the road and in town. Have no permits for the boys, too—they're a dependable pair in a pinch. Look here, Cantine, doesn't it occur to you what those chaps were after?"

"Not if it wasn't dough. You're well known."

"So is Miss Vardell. Now." "But she doesn't . . . What? You mean kidnapping? . . . What? Not so loud! But why not? She'd be considered a very fair ransom proposition for some shrewd mob. She's been advertised enough."

"That's just it," Terry objected.

"I reckon he is."

Throughout the ride, which proved a two-hour excursion along secluded byroads, Severance devoted himself almost exclusively to Gerta. Terry seemed to be having one of his preoccupied spells and had very little to say.

When they neared the farmhouse on their return, Severance explained that he had to be back in the city at a fairly early hour. He had directed Mrs. Sorenson to prepare a supply of sandwiches and there was plenty to drink, for those who felt inclined. He hoped that his seeming want of hospitality would be forgiven. They would arrange to come out some Sunday for one of Karen's dinners.

Gerta stated frankly that she had no desire to be on the country highways late at night with so many irresponsible drivers seemingly at liberty. Caradad, still a little shaken by what she believed was an attempted holdup, was glad to agree with Gerta. The two men were equally satisfied, for reasons they did not disclose.

A LITTLE SATURDAY TALK.

Visitors from foreign countries are not allowed to go into many Hindu temples, but I found one which would admit me. Before I stepped through the doorway, I had to take off my shoes.

I walked through the temple in my "stocking-feet," and was glad I wore socks, at least, since the floor was none too clean. The Hindus enter the temple bare-footed, but it does not make any difference to most of them. They go bare-footed all the time!

A guide showed me sights of interest in the temple. Pointing out a wooden image of a peacock, about four feet high, he said:

"This peacock is sacred to the god Shiva. The wooden bull over there is also sacred to him."

Both images had been brightly painted in several colors. So had other wooden images which had been put in the temple in honor of Shiva's two sons.

The wooden animals were rather crudely made, but I noticed well-carved lion's heads about the walls and near the ceiling. The lion's heads were cut from stone, and the guide said they were sacred to one of Shiva's sons.

In times past, the gods Brahma and Vishnu were as important, or more important, than Shiva. Nowadays Shiva ranks ahead of them in the minds of most Hindus.

A strange thing is the growth in belief about the powers of the wives of the three main Hindu gods. Some members of the faith think the wives are more powerful than the gods!

I asked the guide the meaning of the name of the temple I was visiting. "The name," he replied, "means Temple of Shiva's Wife and Her Husband."

When I came near the central altar, I found it had a veil in front of it. Behind the veil, I noticed the light of a lamp.

"This altar," said the guide, "is for worship of Shiva's wife. A coconut lamp is kept burning near the altar. People come mostly in the early morning and the late afternoon."

In the yard outside the temple, I saw a small shrine. It contained an image of a god with the face of an elephant!

For the rest of the list, the response to President Roosevelt's press conference remarks on commodity prices and inflation, was mixed.

U. S. governments were pulled a little lower despite the President's assurance of action on inflationary measures for attaining his goal of a better balanced commodity price structure. At the same time, some low yield corporate issues advanced fractionally.

The Associated General of 20 rail bonds closed 5 of a point lower at 65.1. The utility composite was .2 lower, the industrial 1 higher. Transactions totaled $83.3 million, compared with $8,764,400 yesterday.

CURB OILS ADVANCE

DESPITE DOWNTURN

Utilities Also Register Gains While Specialties Show Sharp Drops.

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—(AP)—Oils and utilities eked out gains in today's curb market against a broad downturn in industrial specialties.

Aluminum Company of America closed at $3 1/2, off 1/2. Aluminum, Ltd. 88, off 2. Col's Patent Fire Arms, 57 5/8, off 3 1/8. Peppercorn, 71 1/4, off 1 1/4. Newmont 31 3/4, off 1 1/4.

Gains ranged from fractions to more than a point in American Gas & Electric, Gulf Oil, Humble, International Petroleum, Northern States Power, and Niagara Hudson Power. Empire Gas & Fuel 8 per cent preferred, an inactive utility, picked up 9 1/2 points on small sales.

Transactions totaled 147,000 shares against 148,000 yesterday.

Stocks Resistance to 1937 Lows

Stirs Hope of Market Upswing

Business Is Depressed, But Not Getting Worse, As asserts Hughes.

By GEORGE T. HUGHES.

(Copyright 1938 by The Constitution and the North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.)

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—The stock market is in an interesting position. Two weeks ago, it had recorded a decline of nearly 16 points in the industrial averages and more than five points in the rails from the high of the January recovery.

At that point, the industrial averages had duplicated their December low while the railroad shares had made a new low for the year.

However, this week both the industrial and the rail have retraced somewhat like 55 per cent of the lost ground in the case of the former and more than 40 per cent in the case of the latter. This is a normal rally and may not be significant of any change in trend, but if it should go far enough to surpass the highs of January 10 and 11, the implications would be that the intermediate movement is upward.

Forecasting Is Limited.

Now all that the charts can do is to picture what has actually happened. Their forecasting value is limited to the principle that a trend, once clearly established, usually goes far enough to make it worth following. The question then arises whether there is any justification for a further recovery in stock prices.

Obviously, that question admits of no positive answer. Some things, however, can be pointed out, and one is that industrial stocks have not broken their 1937 minimum, touched in late November. That is true also of the market as a whole measured by any of the accepted indexes. In other words, while there has been no definite indication of a turn, the decline has met resistance on every dip for the last four months.

The only qualification this statement needs relates to the weakness in the railroad stocks, which, however, is absorbed if stocks as a whole are the yardstick. In other words, the stock market curve is flattening out.

Business is depressed. Even the administration recognizes that, as the secretary of the Treasury has admitted. Unemployment has increased. And yet here to the business indexes show an extraordinary movement in striking contrast to the precipitate decline in the last half of 1937. Business has not improved, but it is not getting worse, still taking it as a whole. Perhaps it is only a breathing spell, but it is worth noting.

Situation of Commodities.

A similar situation exists in commodity prices. That curve moved down practically without interruption from early August to late November. Since that time, it has been relatively flat.

Rivers Expects Teachers' Pay Mailing Today

Teachers' salaries for the last two weeks in January probably will be mailed today, Governor Rivers said yesterday.

He said the amount, involving about $650,000, would cover all past due salaries outstanding.

Teachers' pay for February will not come until March 1. Rivers predicted there would be a shortage at that time, but said increased revenue during March, including income tax payments, would permit the state to make up this deficit and get back on schedule before the end of March.

The Governor said it is customary to mail salary checks about the 20th of each month so they will be in the hands of the teachers by the close of the month.

He said the state was trying to avoid the necessity of either state or counties borrowing money to meet school payrolls.

DEKALB POLL REGISTER WILL CLOSE APRIL 2

DeKalb county citizens wishing to vote in the DeKalb Democratic primary, to be held May 11, must register and pay poll taxes by April 2, it was decided yesterday by the county executive committee.

The same date has been set as the deadline for candidates to qualify in the race for county commissioner, judge of DeKalb county and solicitor for the city court.

MISSISSIPPI ADOPTS

GEORGIA ROAD PLAN

Highway Official Selects Set-Up Here as Model in That State.

I. W. Brown, Mississippi highway engineer who is soon to be named the director of that state's division of highway planning, returned to Jackson, Miss., last night after spending a week in the offices of the Georgia division of highway planning, an adjunct of the State Highway Board.

Brown announced that the Georgia set-up, under O. T. Ray, state director, would be used as a model in the formation of his Mississippi organization. He came to Atlanta after reviewing the activities of the divisions of highway planning in Florida, Alabama and Louisiana and was accompanied here by representatives of the southeastern district headquarters of the United States Bureau of Public Roads, at Montgomery, Ala.

Every state in the Union now has its division of highway planning, working in co-operation with the United States bureau. Mississippi is the last state to approve affiliation with the movement.

CENTER FOR NEGROES SOUGHT IN DEKALB

Group Also Working To Establish Clinic and Mission School.

A modern community center for negroes in DeKalb county, with a clinic and mission school is the aim of the charitable educational work being carried on each Sunday afternoon by a group of DeKalb students.

Begun several years ago, the present mission school is a building badly in need of repairs, but negroes of the center around which Bible classes are taught to the members of all ages each week. The first step toward the goal for the center has been obtained in the form of a lot on Atlanta avenue which was bought by donations from various churches in the locality. The present mission school is on Herndon street. The lot is only the beginning of what is hoped to be an unusual center for negroes, but $6,000 is needed for the present plans to be carried out.

DeKalb residents and church members do their part in the building of the center by donations but the actual teaching of the Bible to the 90 members of the negro class is left to eight college and high school students of DeKalb. The mission is interdenominational.

Acting as teachers are Miss Martha Moore and Charles McCann, of the DeKalb high school; Miss Sam Olive Griffin, of Decatur; Miss Susie Blackmon, of Anniston, Ala., and Miss Agnes Hardy, of Richmond, Va., all students at Agnes Scott, and Joseph Boyd, of Mississippi; James Boyce, of Dade City, Fla., and Clark Bennett, of Wheaton, Ill., all students at the Columbia Theological Seminary. In addition to the student teachers there is Edward Jones, superintendent, and Mrs. Raydie Campbell. Isabelle Wilson is a colored worker. Each of the student teachers have their own classes.

DR. E. J. JOHNSON, 63, DIES IN MEMPHIS

Pneumonia Fatal to Noted Tennessee Surgeon.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Feb. 18.—(AP)—Dr. Eugene Joseph Johnson, 63, noted Memphis surgeon, died of pneumonia at 4 o'clock this afternoon in a hospital.

Already weakened by an attack of influenza, Dr. Johnson was taken to the hospital from his home February 3 when his illness was diagnosed as pneumonia. Several blood transfusions were made.

A native of Lexington, Tenn., he attended the Memphis Medical College. After serving his internship at a Vicksburg (Miss.) hospital and St. Joseph's hospital, Memphis, Dr. Johnson began practice at Eden, Miss., where he made a reputation for himself as a surgeon.

INDUSTRIAL GAINS ARE URGED IN SOUTH TO HALT MIGRATION

Sociologist Asserts Biggest Problem Is Population Question.

Industrial expansion in the south is needed to stop the migration of southerners to the north, Dr. William F. Ogburn, University of Chicago sociologist, declared yesterday in an address before the Georgia Academy of Social Sciences at Emory University.

A native Georgian, Dr. Ogburn said the most serious problem before the south today is the population question. The crisis centers around the birth rate, which is much higher in the south than in the rest of the nation. He said that for 20 years surplus southern population has been migrating to northern and western states.

"Since it costs two or three thousand dollars or more to rear a child, the south has contributed 10 or 15 billion dollars in recent years to the north and west by giving them an educated labor force without cost to them," he declared.

The number of present unemployed has decreased the opportunity for migration, he said. "Hence, the stream of migration out of the south is backed up to the extent of several million, which tends to lower the average southern standard of living."

Dr. Ogburn added "the situation is further complicated by the introduction of labor-saving machines which take jobs away from men. These labor-saving devices are like migration of iron men into the south."

He declared "the best way out for the south is to develop new industries and to prosecute vigorously a program of industrial expansion. He added that "if the present migration of southerners to the north should continue, the south will literally occupy the whole nation even though it lost the War Between the States."

LABOR CASE SENT BACK TO DALTON

The Georgia supreme court yesterday sent back to Whitfield county superior court the suit of the Dalton Bedspread Workers' Union against the O'Jay Spread Company, Inc.

The high court held a suit cannot be brought in the name of an unincorporated labor association, and ruled any legal action would have to be in the name and in behalf of all individual members.

The Wagner national labor relations act was found to be not involved in the Dalton case.

The union sought to recover $305 for expenses of its representatives, and $50,000 in punitive damages on all allegations that the O'Jay company violated a temporary contract with the union.

The supreme court held Judge C. C. Pittman, of Whitfield superior court, was in error in refusing to entertain demurrers by the employees' attorneys, and ordered the case continued.

RAILROADER SWAPS RAILS FOR FURROWS

W. J. Kincaid Retires to Farm at Jasper After 51 Years of Service.

From switchman to superintendent, with 51 years of service in between, is the record W. J. Kincaid, recently resigned employee of the Southern Railway system, can review as he spends his life these days on a farm near Jasper, Ga.

Kincaid started his railroad life atop a swaying box car on March 1, 1887. He was a brakeman on the old Western North Carolina road, which ran narrow-gauge tracks from Old Paint Rock to Salisbury, N. C., a distance of 181 miles.

Capacity for the wood cars of those days was two tons, he recalled yesterday, and accidents were numerous. He was a flagman for eight years.

Later, he was a station agent for the Richmond & Danville line, which absorbed the first company. The R. & D. was taken over by the Southern system in 1894.

Mr. Kincaid has spent the last few years as superintendent of station service, working directly out of the president's office in Washington, D. C. He is 72.

He and his wife intend to live permanently on the Georgia farm.

JUNIOR LEAGUER NAMED. NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—(AP)—Mrs. John L. Hutchison Jr., of Chattanooga, Tenn., was nominated today by the board of directors of the Association of Junior Leagues of America for the next treasurer of the organization.

Act Becomes Law in Georgia Without Approval of House

Measure Provides That Judges, Not Juries Fix Criminal Sentences.

An act requiring judges instead of juries to fix criminal sentences was the law of Georgia yesterday but it was discovered the house of representatives did not adopt the measure before adjournment last week.

A clerical error was blamed for the mixup, which sent the bill to the Governor for his signature despite the fact that the official records of both house and senate show it was adversely reported by the house judiciary committee No. 1 January 20. It was never read in the house the third time, which is necessary for passage, records revealed.

Error Explained. The confusion was attributed by attaches of the Governor's office to a senate resolution of the same number, calling for a constitutional amendment to permit Brantley county to levy a tax to retire school bonds.

Governor Rivers said the bill came to his desk bearing the required signatures of Speaker Roy V. Harris, House Clerk Joe Boone, Senate President John B. Spivey and Senate Secretary John Hammond, and purporting to have been passed by the house February 12, 1938. The senate had previously approved the bill January 4, 29 to 5.

"I signed the bill in good faith," Governor Rivers said, "and the law department advises me it is now the law of Georgia."

The Governor said he asked Assistant Attorney W. H. Duckworth and Ellis G. Arnall for an unofficial ruling, and both said it was valid.

Ruling Is Cited. Duckworth and Arnall later cited a Georgia supreme court ruling, Dorsey, Governor vs. Wright, comptroller general; 150 Georgia 321. This decision, handed down in a similar case, reads:

"A duly enrolled act, properly authenticated by the regular presiding officers of both houses of the general assembly, approved by the Governor, and deposited with the secretary of state as an existing law, will be conclusively presumed to have been enacted in accordance with constitutional requirements."

The Brantley county resolution is shown to have been read in the house on the same dates as are reported on the back of the court bill. The resolution, however, shows a house vote of 143 to 0, whereas the purported vote on the court bill is 103 to 0.

Signed in Good Faith. Speaker Harris, who signed the bill with House Clerk Boone, said last night he had placed his signature on the measure in good faith, and added, "I think we'll work the thing out in a day or two." He said he was not sure whether he would attempt to have his name removed from the bill.

Assistant Attorney General Arnall said the new law did not have bearing on the death sentence imposed by Judge Will R. Smith on three youths who pleaded guilty or armed robbery.

Arnall said the 1837 statute under which the trio was sentenced provides for death unless the jury recommends mercy. Since the youths pleaded guilty, he added, there was no jury, and the judge was left with no alternative.

Judge Smith sentenced W. T. Riggs Jr., 21; Irving Canter, 18; and Edward Myddleton, 17, to die in the electric chair March 1.

Charles E. Hartsfield, deputy clerk of the Fulton superior court, said the new law would go into effect at once in Fulton superior and Fulton criminal courts. No cases are scheduled until next week.

Man, 67, Arrested in Death of Youth

Filling Station Worker Dies of Bullet Wounds in Chest and Head.

A 67-year-old man was booked on "suspicion of shooting" by city police yesterday following the death of Monroe Pinkard, 23-year-old filling station employee, at Grady hospital of bullet wounds in the chest and head.

The suspect, listed as Brown Parker, of a Bryant street address, was being held while city detectives investigated reports Pinkard and Parker had quarreled, police said.

Pinkard stepped from his automobile at the filling station at Flat Shoals avenue and Fair street, where he was employed, and collapsed at the feet of his employer, M. R. Michael.

He died at Grady without regaining consciousness. Michael told police he had seen Pinkard drive past the station about 10 minutes before he returned, wounded in the abdomen and near the ear.

Police quoted Mrs. Pinkard as saying her husband was taking her sister to school. She said the trouble between Pinkard and Parker grew out of an "insulting letter" Parker wrote her, police said.

COMMISSION MEETING DATE IS CHANGED

The regular March meeting of the Fulton county commission, scheduled for March 2, was postponed yesterday because of the county primary and special election to be held on that date.

Chairman J. A. Ragsdale said the body would meet March 2 to adjourn immediately until the following day, at which time public hearings on sewer and zoning projects will be held.

2 CALIFORNIA SLAYERS HANGED AT SAME TIME

SAN QUENTIN, Cal., Feb. 18.—(AP)—Roy L. Righthouse, of Fresno, and Lee Grant Goodwin, of Los Angeles, were hanged simultaneously on the prison gallows here today.

Righthouse was sentenced for luring Elma Estep, a nurse, to his home last Easter and beating her to death. Goodwin was convicted of killing Harry H. Crowther Jr. in a holdup.

YOUTH, 19, SEIZED IN EXTORTION TRAP

Tennessean Arrested as Child Leads U. S. Agents to His Room in Hotel.

Marshall Foch Sloan, 19-year-old unemployed Tennessean, sat nervously in a Fulton tower cell last night, his dreams of "quick, easy money" shattered by federal agents who broke up his alleged extortion game with the aid of a "decoy" money package and an unsuspecting 8-year-old girl.

The youth, who said he came to Atlanta seeking work to support his newlywed wife, was held under $1,000 bond after a hearing before United States Commissioner E. S. Griffith on charges of attempting to extort $5,000 from Lewis V. R. Smith, manager of the Jefferson Loan Society, at 8 Auburn avenue.

Sloan was arrested Thursday afternoon after Federal Bureau of Investigation agents had left a "decoy" money package on a table in a downtown hotel designated in the last of three notes mailed to Smith.

Federal agents sought to trap the alleged extortioner after each of the first two letters were received, but instructions were so vague, and Sloan apparently knew so little about the city, that contact could not be made. J. W. Vincent, chief of the Atlanta bureau of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, said.

On receipt of the third and more explicit letter, agents left the package of paper on the table designated, Vincent said. Sloan walked into the hotel, saw the package and went to his room, where he got a little girl living in the hotel to get the package for him, the chief agent continued. Federal men made the arrest as Sloan was opening the package, Vincent revealed. A pistol lay on a bed near by.

Each of the notes I received was a little stronger than the other," Smith said last night, "but none of them directly threatened death. Each additional one was granting a little time. Apparently the writer was in desperate need of money. I had never seen the boy until called by federal agents and told of the arrest."

"Cause, Effect and Destiny" will be the subject of a lecture in practical psychology to be given by Mrs. Rose Marie Ashby at 3:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon in the Pine room of the Ansley hotel. Public invited.

Georgia Military Academy will be host to the commander and other officers of the 122nd regiment of the national guard at full dress parade exercises at the academy at 3:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. Following the parade, the cadet band will give a half-hour concert.

Questions on the liquor problem will be answered by the Rev. C. R. Stauffer tomorrow night at the forum conducted in conjunction with the regular evening service of the First Christian church.

Pi Chapter of Alpha Kappa Psi will hold a stag house party this week end at Vogel State Park in the Georgia mountains. The following men will be formally invited: Olin Fricks, Ralph Saye, Kenneth Zimmerman, John Parker and Roy Tripp.
